PREFACE.

THIS work is designed as a genealogy or chronology, rather than as a history. I have exercised the greatest care, in order to have the work as complete and correct as it was possible to make it. It is not to be expected that a work so vast and comprehensive should be entirely free from mistakes. I warn you, however, not to be too ready to say all the mistakes are mine, for I have carefully preserved all your letters for future reference. I am asked so often how came I to undertake such a stupendous work, that I'll tell you. It wasn't so stupendous when I first undertook it, and not until after three or four years of work did it so grow and enlarge on me that I couldn't let go. But again you ask why I undertook it; for whose approval was I striving; who advised me when in doubt, cheered me in my despair, counselled with me when in trouble; and who will be most pleased and proud of the successful completion of this labor of love and family pride? MY MOTHER—who, from my childhood, ever strived to impress upon my mind the priceless heritage I possessed in having come of a good family; that for many generations, as far back as history or tradition could carry us, my ancestors, both paternal and maternal, were a brave, honest, God-fearing, and home-loving people. The men have been brave in battle, patriotic in citizenship, good neighbors; in religion simple, earnest, and devout; industrious in accumulating a competency; and their integrity and honesty noted among all who knew them. They were usually of large stature, perfect physique, great strength, jovial, and proverbially obedient sons, loving husbands, and indulgent fathers. And the women have even a prouder heritage than the men; for when Rome was in the zenith of her power, when Greece was renowned for her learning and arts, and Egypt was revelling in the accumulated wealth and splendor of centuries—amid all these times and peoples that go to make history, woman occupied only a secondary place, mainly dependent on the whim or caprice of her husband (or lover). How, then, like a star in the night, shines forth that golden testimony of the ancient historian TACITUS, who, two thousand years ago, in his history of "Germania," wrote: "The women, whose chastity was without reproach, were held in high esteem." This line can be properly appreciated only when we study the condition of woman in those olden times, and keep in mind that, throughout all the succeeding centuries of wars and revolutions, the German women never once fell from their high estate, but continued to be the pride of the German people and the admiration of the world. And now, in this day, their descendants grace, honor, and adorn the positions of daughter, sister, and wife; but it is as MOTHER that she is most dear to us. Napoleon said, "The future of the child is the work of the mother;" and Washington, in the height of his greatness, was proud to acknowledge, "I owe all to my mother." Can we do less?

For four centuries our family has held a prominent and honorable place in the communities where they lived; yet I have never known of the publication of any family history or genealogy. As ancient peoples are known to us only by the few books that have survived the centuries of devastation and revolutions, so posterity will know us only by books: for governments will change; nations rise and fall; customs, manners, and habits will vary; new inventions will revolutionize the mode and manner of living and making a living; but copies of this book will be placed in the leading public libraries of the United States, and the names enrolled in this book will be handed down to posterity as long as this government shall last—as long as law shall reign over disorder, liberty triumph over oppression, and freedom, virtue, and Christianity remain the crowning blessings of our beloved country.

If this work shall inspire you with a love and veneration for our honored ancestors, cause you to become interested in the history of the peoples and times in which they lived, and, above all, induce you to utilize the blank pages in this book to transmit to your posterity a faithful history and chronology of your own immediate family, then this book will have served its purpose, and my work will not have been in vain.

Should this volume meet with favor, I hope at some future time to publish a second volume of history, biography, illustrations, and portraits.

JOHN C. GARR.

HOW TO FIND NAMES IN THE BOOK.

I have spent many fruitless hours trying to invent or discover a suitable form of index, but failed utterly to find anything I deemed would be at once comprehensive and easily understood; so I decided to get along without an index. But by observing a few hints you will not have much difficulty in finding any name you may desire.

First find your P. O. Address (pages 1 to 59), and there you find your name with its number and page where may be found your family record. To properly appreciate this book, you must study it; and don't think you can digest or fully understand it with simply glancing at it a few times. In searching for addresses, first find the State, then the County, then the Postoffice. With few exceptions they are placed in groups, as follows:

CARD OF THANKS.

I WISH hereby to express my heartfelt gratitude to the many who have so kindly assisted me in the preparation of this work, and sincerely hope you may never have cause to regret the result of our combined efforts. My first help was from my mother, whose excellent memory of those who were old when she was young enabled me to understand and classify the data left by my dear father. Then my brother James persisted in rendering me most valuable assistance, though never once encouraging me with an expression of his belief in my ultimate success. Also, many kind letters and valuable information from—

7348—251 JOEL C. CLORE, Att'y,	479—111 NELSON W. CRISLER.
3102—285 NEWTON B. SMITH, Att'y,	2787—260 ABEL W. GARR,

2774—258 ABRAM GAAR,	4954—188 MISS FRANCES C. YAGER,

4037—164 MISS BELLE BAKER.	3773—158 MISS GERTRUDE MILLER.

And many others whose names belong here did space permit.

I intend to continue this genealogy, and will keep a large book for that purpose, wherein will be recorded all the family records, names, dates, biographies, and historical matter that I may secure, or which you will be kind enough to send to me. Should you find mistakes in the book, please write me, so I may correct them. When you set down in your book a new entry of birth, marriage, death, or change of P. O. Address, be sure to write me about it, so I may keep my book correct up to date. Any family records that belong in the book, but may have been omitted, please send them to me, so that I may give them proper place and record in my new appendix. Many have written me letters of inquiry which, for lack of time, have remained unanswered. If you will kindly write again, I will take great pleasure in answering your letters, and giving you any information in my power.

Again thanking you, one and all, for your kind assistance, sympathy, and interest, believe me to be,

Permanent Address,

Faithfully yours,

JOHN C. GARR.

P. S.—I am indebted, for valuable information received, to "Rupp's Collection—Thirty Thousand Names of German Emigrants to Pennsylvania"; Strobel's "History of the Salzburgers"; and Howe's "Colonial Virginia."

Ancient History of the Germans.

The first occurrence in connection with the history of the people of Germania with which we are acquainted was the appearance of warlike tribes of Cimbri and Teutones in the present "Steiermark," or Siria, where they defeated the Roman consul Papirius in the year 113 B. C. Eleven years later Marius defeated them signally.

Of undoubted German nations who took part in the destruction of the Roman Empire, the most prominent were the Goths, Lombards, Vandals, and Franks. Pytheas, who wrote in 320 B. C., mentions the name of the Teutones as then inhabiting a part of the Cimbric Chersonesus, or Jutland. For the next two hundred years there is no further mention of the Teutones—that is, not until 113 B. C., when they appear in conjunction with the Cimbers and Ambrones, threatening the very existence of Rome.

The best German scholars hold that the Germans were to be considered a branch of the Teutonic race. The knowledge which we possess of the habits and government of the ancient Germans is principally derived from the Commentaries of Cæsar and the "Germania" of Tacitus; and imperfect as these sources of information are, they are infinitely less contradictory than the subsequent records of the earliest Christian times.

According to the Roman history, "The Germans were a people of high stature, fair complexion, and red or yellow hair, endowed with great bodily strength, and distinguished for an indomitable love of liberty. The men delighted in active exercises and the perils of war; and the women, whose chastity was without reproach, were held in high esteem."

The religion of the Germans, which is shrouded in great obscurity, points, like their language, to their Eastern origin, and was based upon Asiatic myths of the creation of the world and the existence of gods having the form and attributes of perfect humanity. Principal among the gods they worshiped was Woodan, the god of the air and the sky, who was looked upon as the giver of the fruits of the earth, and he was represented as an imposing figure in a large white mantle, riding upon a white horse.

It is generally said—and both Cæsar and Tacitus affirm this—that the Germans had neither temples nor statues; nevertheless Tacitus mentions a temple of a goddess Tanfana among the Marsians; and at a later period we find Christian missionaries exhorting the Germans to change their pagan temples into Christian churches. Nevertheless the religion of the Germans was mainly and generally carried on in the open air, in groves and forests. Each master of a household performed religious service for himself and his family within his own household.

"We should bear in mind these are the same Germans who were later converted to Catholicism, and still later were followers of Martin Luther. The virtues which later were ascribed to Christ or to his church, together with its precepts and proverbs, were the same as, in ancient times, were devoted to their other gods."

The attempt made by Varus, under the direction of Augustus, to introduce the Roman provincial forms of administration into Germany brought, however, a sudden check to the advance and consolidation of Roman power; for the tribes of Central Germany, indignant at this attempted subversion of their national institutions, ranged themselves under the leadership of Arminius, a chief of the Cherusci, who organized a general revolt. The result of this movement was the destruction, at the Saltus Teutobergensis, of the three legions commanded by Varus, and the subsequent loss of all the Roman possessions between the Weser and the Rhine. Since A. D. 14 the Romans ceased their attempt to conquer Germany.

The first missionaries to Germany were Irish monks, who labored with considerable success with the Bavarians. The honor of converting Germany as a whole belongs mainly to St. Bonifacius, an Englishman, who, in 717, began the task of his life, and in 755 died a martyr's death. By that time all the German tribes, with the exception of the Saxons, professed Christianity.

Charles V. was the most powerful monarch in Europe. He reigned over the Germans from 1519 to 1566. During his reign he conferred upon the Gaars a coat of arms, who were at that time—379 years ago—an old and well-deserving family. It is well known that the Gaars came from Franconia. The name of Gar or Gaar is distinctly and purely German, and is not traceable to either the Celts, Goths, Gauls, or Romans.

The Thirty Years' War—1618 to 1648—depopulated the rural districts of Germany, destroyed its commerce, burdened the people with taxes, and cut up the Empire into a multitude of petty States.

In conclusion, we now come to the persecution which brought thousands of emigrants to America. The persecution, which was the most cruel of any that preceded it, was begun at the instance of Leopold, Archbishop of Salzburg, who, having discovered that many of his subjects had renounced the religion of Rome, determined either to reduce them to submission or expatriate them from his dominion. This persecution commenced in 1729, and continued until 1732. In order to escape the bitter persecution waged against them by this bishop, Andreas Gaar, at the head of three hundred Palatines, left Illenschwang in 1732 for America, and settled in what is now Madison County, Virginia, where they were members of the first German Lutheran Church in America.

DINKELSBUEHL.

The ancient history of Dinkelsbuehl is wrapped up in the deepest obscurity. Records which would disclose the origin and development of the city have, up to the present time, not been found in the municipal archives; and if such records ever existed, they in all probability will never be discovered, because, at all events, they must have been destroyed by one of the great conflagrations which afflicted Dinkelsbuehl during the first centuries of its existence, or carried away during the religious disturbances of the sixteenth or seventeenth century.

In the days of old, according to tradition, there stood upon the place whereupon now the monastery of the "Carmelites" is erected, a farmhouse, the owner of which principally busied himself with raising "German corn" (dinkel), in consequence of which his neighbors gave him the sobriquet "Dinkelbauer." Dinkelbauer was on terms of friendship with the monks and pilgrims who frequently passed his residence, and upon whom he bestowed his hospitality; and, according to the custom of ancient times, he erected near his farm a chapel for the purpose of satisfying religious wants. Finally he presented the monks with his entire farm property, upon which they erected a monastery. Soon thereafter a number of farmers from the surrounding country settled near and around the monastery, and on account of the site of the settlement upon the hill (in ancient German puhil, buhil, buchel, buehl), and of the principal cultivation of the kind of grain (in ancient German called thinfil, dinfil, dinchel, Dinfel), the new place was called Thinfilspuhil, Dinfilspuhil—now Dinkelsbuehl. However, there is no doubt that the city is older than the monastery, and the tradition about the farmer Dinkelbauer is nothing else but an effort to lift the veil which hides the remote antiquity of Dinkelsbuehl.

The monastery of the Carmelites could not have been built before the second half of the thirteenth century, because this religious order was founded in 1156, and was not introduced in Germany till the year 1250. Several reliable chronicles state that this monastery was erected in the year 1290; but the name of Dinkelsbuehl was already mentioned in the year 1151, which is a historical fact. At that time Father Firris, a monk, made a tour through Germany, and in writing to his friend Tirri about his intended return to Rome, mentioned Dinkepole (Dinkelsbuehl) as one of the cities he would visit.

There is no doubt that in the year 1188 this city was already inclosed with a wall or possessed a castle. According to a document dated March 23, 1188, Emperor Frederick Barbarossa presented his son Conrad, Duke of Rothenburg, with the possession of "Burgum Tinkelspuhel" (Dinkelsbuehl).

It is reasonable to presume that a city which was able to erect and maintain an expensive church-building, a large hospital, and various public buildings, the architecture of which descends from the beginning of the thirteenth century, must long before that time have passed the first stages of its development; hence it is justifiable to trace back to the tenth century the origin of Dinkelsbuehl.

Up to the year 1250, we have heard nothing reliable about the fate of this city; however, there is a document in existence stating that Conrad IV., the "Hohenstaufe," mortgaged Dinkelsbuehl and other cities to Count Ludwig von Oettingen. From that date on, during a whole century, the city remained in bondage. As soon as the city had paid the mortgage to Count Oettingen, Conrad IV. sold the city again to the Count. Finally, in the year 1351, she bought her independence for an enormous sum of money, and remained an immediate member of the empire till the beginning of our century.

On the 11th day of August, 1305, Albrecht the First issued a decree creating Dinkelsbuehl a free city of the empire (Freie Reichstadt), bestowing upon the city a great many privileges, and the right to establish their own courts and levy taxes for the repairing of the walls and towers inclosing the city. He also granted them a patent for the manufacture of gray cloth. During the fourteenth century the city was flourishing, and large quantities of manufactured goods, particularly fine cloth, were sold all over the empire.

Up to the year 1387 the municipal government was controlled exclusively by the so-called patricians, composed of the original settlers of the city and emigrated noblemen. The workingmen had formed guilds, and had accumulated considerable wealth. They demanded a representation in the municipal council, which was flatly refused by the patricians, and consequently caused endless contentions. However, on February 18, 1387, the patricians yielded by granting the workmen an equal representation in the council. Repeatedly hostile cities in the neighborhood, as well as Count von Oettingen, disturbed the city; but the brave citizens defeated their enemies.

On March 10, 1444, the foundation of the magnificent St. George Church was laid. The structure was completed in 1499.

In the year 1532 the council and a large majority of the citizens unanimously adopted the Protestant religion, and sent Michael Bauer to represent them in the "Reichstag," held at Regensburg, and publicly joined the so-called "Augsburg Confession." As a matter of course, the Protestant and Catholic citizens did not live in peace and harmony, and religious prejudice caused a continual disturbance, clogging the wheels of progress, carrying with it a stagnation of business.

The Thirty Years' War did not spare Dinkelsbuehl. It would take pages to count up the suffering of the poor city during this period of terror. The endless quartering of soldiers; the destruction of valuable property; the loss of human life; the continual war contributions, levied by friend and foe; the high price of the necessaries of life; the general stagnation of business; sickness and religious persecutions, almost ruined the once prosperous city. After the conclusion of the Thirty Years' War, other wars followed, affecting the city. In later years many citizens of Dinkelsbuehl participated in the wars against Napoleon the First and the Third. Still, after all the trials this city has passed through, she ranks to-day second to none of the prosperous cities in the German Empire.

DINKELSBUEHL IN 1894,

Inclosed with walls and towers, is an industrious city, situated in Franconia, Kingdom of Bavaria, on the river Woernitz, near the frontier of Wuerttemberg. It has a population of 5,186. There are two Protestant and one Catholic Church, one Latin and several common schools, and many charitable institutions. The population is carrying on a large manufacturing business, such as the manufacture of hosiery, knitted jackets, hats, brushes, yarns, and leather.

Dinkelsbuehl is considered to be the oldest city of Franconia, and was created a free city in the year 1381, enjoying the privilege till the year 1802, when the Elector of Bavaria annexed the city to his dominion. Whilst in 1804 the Principal of Ansbach took possession of the city, nevertheless, two years later it was again annexed to Bavaria.

The city is the birthplace of the celebrated author, Christoph von Schmid, in honor of whom the citizens, in 1859, erected a brazen statue.

L. B. DE LA COURT.

The Old Dutch Church.

AT the foot of the most charming little valley in Virginia, scarcely more than a rifle shot from where the Robinson River and White Oak Run unite in a flush of bubbles, stands this old church nestled in a grove of oak trees. The title-deed for the ground on which the church now stands was made in 1720. This document, still in existence, has an aged and time-worn appearance, although the ink is as black as the day it was written, and no unsteady hand traced its strong, broad characters. Then the workmen began to hew the wood and raise the architrave of this house of worship. Those sturdy Lutherans builded to endure, and it is noticeable that the stout timbers uplifted then are as sound as ever, and the mortar in the foundations has hardened to the consistency of stone. We found on entering the church an audience-room of cruciform shape, with two side galleries and organ-loft. In front of the pulpit, within the altar railing, stands the baptismal bowl of silver, made and presented May 13, 1727. In the loft, at the rear of the church, stands the pipe organ, presented to the congregation by Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden. Its pipes, once glittering and bright, have faded to a dull, lead color, and its wooden case shows that the silent tooth of time spares nothing to us. An old earthen jug standing under the bellows, the sole and silent memorial of Capellmeister Schad, organist and schoolmaster to this congregation, was as dusty and as lonely as are no doubt the bones of its former owner. The organ was made at Lutzen, Sweden, under the direction of the King, expressly for this church, and was transported overland by wagon from Philadelphia. The keyboard is a complete reversal in point of color, those keys being of ebony which are white in modern instruments; the raised keys being ebony, faced with ivory. The tone of the instrument is very good; the flute and gedackt are inexpressibly sweet and soft—as tender to the ear as twilight to the eye—just suited to that mellow, shaded light peculiar to the church. We were reminded constantly, not only by the aspect of quiet and peace which hovered over its walls even when the song of praise rang loudest, but by that indefinable sense of reverence imparted by the accessories of the room, and heightened by the mellow, subdued light gently sifting through the windows of stained glass, that this was no common place; not appropriate for laughter and gaiety, or jest, or light and idle talk, or for any worldly converse. The odor of sanctity prevailed in its atmosphere. The God of Israel had dwelt here for one hundred and forty years, and the light of His countenance was visible to the true believer. It was easy to turn back the wheels of time a century, and picture this church filled with devout worshipers; the aged pastor intoning the litany, and the responses of the congregation; the solemn supplication; the plain, practical sermon; the singing of a German choral, perhaps Luther's grand old battle hymn, "Ein feste burg ist unser Gott" (A strong castle is our God); the benediction; the dismissal; the orderly going away; finally, the old church relapsing into silence and darkness. Or, perhaps, the old organist left alone, breathing out his own prayer through the swelling notes of his much loved organ.—The Musical Million.

EXTENT OF VIRGINIA RECORDS.

SPOTTSYLVANIA COUNTY.—The first county seat of Spottsylvania County was GERMANN, a little village on the Rapid Ann River, on the edge of what is now known as the “Wilderness.” It was at one time a thriving, industrious community, but is now fallen into utter decay, not a single inhabitant and only a few ruins left to indicate one of the landmarks of American history. Here John Waller was sworn in as the first clerk of Spottsylvania County, August 1, 1722, which office he held until his death, 1744. The government was afterwards moved to Spottsylvania Court House, a name indissolubly linked with American history, though now containing less than thirty inhabitants. Here are to be found all the court records of Spottsylvania County from 1722 to the present time, except the marriage records, which go back only to 1795, and it is supposed that previous marriage records were destroyed during the great battle, when the little brick court house was almost riddled with cannon balls.

ORANGE COUNTY.—In 1734 Orange County was organized from Spottsylvania County, and all records are on file complete, except marriage records, which extend back only to 1775.

CULPEPER COUNTY—Was organized from Orange County in 1734, but many of the old records were destroyed during the civil war, and among them were all marriage records previous to 1782.

MADISON COUNTY—Was organized from Culpeper County in 1790, and all records are on file.

The first mentioned families in this book lived about the old Lutheran Church or at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, on the Rapid Ann and Robison Rivers. They did not move from this settlement or locality, although the name of the county changed four times from 1734 to 1790.

RELICS.

I have a large trunk or chest which Andreas Gar brought from Germany. My brother has the old shoe-hammer and original German letters of recommendation which Andreas Gar brought from Germany; also a Dutch Bible and German-English dictionary which belonged to Elizabeth B. (Gaar) Blankenbaker, daughter of Andreas Gar.

I would be pleased to hear of any other relics that may be in possession of any members of the family. Write and give me their history and description.

Im rothen Felde 2 halbe schwarze Adler, die das Alter des Stammes bedeuten. Einen offenen Ritterhelm, auf welchem eine Krone ruht, worin zwei Adlersflügel gestellt sind, die den Aufschwung der Familien darstellen. Die Helmdecke ist roth und silbern. Dieses Wappen erhielten sie zur Belohnung ihrer treuen Dienste vom Kaiser Karl den 5ten, 1519.

Heraldic Description of the Gaar's Family Crest.

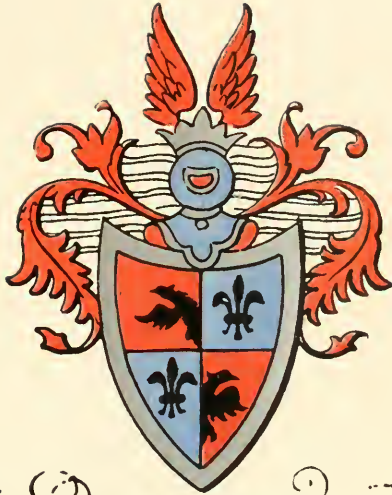

The Gaars coming from Franconia are an old and very good family, and carry in the blue field of the crest two black lilies, which proves the eminence of the family. In the red field, two half black eagles, which symbolize the age of the family tree. An open knight's helmet, on which a crown is posted, and on the top two eagles' wings, symbolize the ascent of the family. The helmet cover is red and silver.

This crest they have received as a reward from Emperor Charles the Fifth in the year 1519. Such a crest is to be found in the Paul Princely Crest Book, Part 3, page 32, f. b. 173.

THEODORE VAN ASTEN, Painter.

A painting of this crest was given to myself, JOHN CALHOUN GARR, at Dinkelsbuehl, Bavaria, February 21, 1888, by LEONARD GAAR (see page 564), Burgomaster of Sinnbronn, Bavaria, who also sent me a copy of the "Heraldic Description."

NOTE.

It has required six years of patient toil to compile this work. You must not expect to digest it or fully understand it in six minutes or six hours. It may require you six weeks or six months. Each time you take up the book you will find something new, and when once thoroughly understood, it will be just as plain to you as that $2 + 2 = 4$. Remember, PATIENCE. It is all there, if you have the patience to search for it.

PROPER SPELLING OF NAMES.

It is idle to talk about the correct way to spell a name. There is no established rule to go by. The form and spelling change according to the nation, century, and language of the time. Wilhoit is spelled in a dozen ways; but I think the old German was Wülheit, just as Crisler was Christler, Clore was Klohr, Blankenbaker was Bleichenbacher, Snyder was Schneider, Fisher was Fischer, Garr was Gaar or Gar, Yager was Jaeger, Carpenter was Zimmerman, and so on; just as to-day Cologne is Köln, Bavaria is Bayern, Munich is München, Vienna is Wien, etc., etc.

Thus it will be easily seen that the exact spelling of a name is of little moment in tracing family connections or genealogy.

It is the dates, the parents, the brothers and sisters, etc., that help to identify a name and give it proper place in its family.

NOTE.—“According to the Roman historians, the Germans (B. C. 100 to A. D. 200) were a people of high stature, fair complexion, and red or yellow hair, endowed with great bodily strength, and distinguished for an indomitable love of liberty. The men delighted in active exercises and the perils of war; and the women, whose chastity was without reproach, were held in high esteem.”—Chambers' Encyclopedia.

This is the race from which we sprung, and I beg of you to interest yourself in its history. Especially the younger people should avail themselves of every opportunity to consult histories, dictionaries, and encyclopedias upon such subjects as Germany, Bavaria, Charles V., Dinkelsbuehl Illenschwang, Frankenhofen, Luther, Palatines, Salzburg, Thirty Years' War, Lutherans in America, Germantown, Pastorius, Muhlenberg, Ebenezer, Elbert County, Ga.; Germanna, Virginia, Counties of Spottsylvania, Culpeper, Orange, and Madison; Kentucky and its three original counties.

Try to learn why these people moved from Germany to Pennsylvania then to Virginia, thence to Kentucky, then to Indiana, Illinois, Missouri Texas, and on to California. If we are creatures of circumstances, then study the political, social, and religious times in which these different generations lived. Try to trace those unseen yet mighty forces that make history and change geographies. You will find such study and research both interesting and profitable.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Where a child's name is marked with a †, it indicates that that child also married a blood descendant of John Gar No. 1, page 60.

NOTE.—Remember, each family record consists of parents and children. In looking over the book, or searching for names or families, have in mind whether you are searching for parents or children. There are two generations in each family record. Don't get them mixed.

NOTE.—When you see the letters f. b. after a name, they signify that that person is the owner of their parents' family Bible record.

A father may turn his back on his child; brothers and sisters may become inveterate enemies; husbands may desert their wives; wives their husbands; but a mother's love endures through all. In good repute, in bad repute, in the face of the world's condemnation, a mother still loves on, and still hopes that her child may turn from his evil ways and repent. Still she remembers the infant smiles that once filled her bosom with rapture; the merry laugh; the joyful shout of his childhood; the opening promise of his youth; and she can never be brought to think him all unworthy.—Washington Irving.

A mother's love for her children is undying, unchanging. No matter how unworthy of this boundless affection a son may become, the mother's prayers and best wishes will always follow after him, even to the felon's cell, and from thence to the gallows. He is always to her a prince, though to all the world beside he may be a vagabond. And only when reason topples on its throne and memory becomes a blank, and she is a pauper in the mental world, does she forget her child, or her children's children.

* * It is as difficult to define with precision the shadowy line that marks the boundary between the domain of reason and mental chaos as it is to define the precise line of twilight where daylight ends and darkness begins.—C. C. Cram.

Mother—The holy thoughts and chastened memories that cluster around this name can never be so well expressed as in the calm utterance of the name itself.—Shaw.

"A true man loves woman. He who as a boy loved his mother, in youth his sister, will as a man love his wife."

Even He that died for us upon the cross in the last hour, in the unutterable agony of death, was mindful of his mother as if to teach us that this holy love should be our last worldly thought—the last point of earth from which the soul should take its flight for heaven. —Longfellow.

Queen Anne, who well understood the policy of England to retain her own subjects at home, encouraged the emigration of Germans, sent some of those whom she had invited in 1708 and 1709 to Virginia, settled them above the falls of the Rappahannock in Spottsylvania County, where they commenced a town called Germanna. The locality was unpropitious. They moved some miles farther up the river, where they soon drove well.—Rupp.

Shenandoah and Rockingham Counties in Virginia were settled by Germans from Pennsylvania prior to 1736. Many of their descendants still speak the German language. When George Washington and others were surveying lands in that part of Virginia in April, 1748, they were attended with a great company of people—men, women, and children—who followed through the woods. They would never speak English, but when spoken to, they all spoke Dutch (German).—Spark's Washington.

The richest field of history in America is Virginia—the land where the first English colonists strove to gain a foothold in the New World; where the primeval savage was first overcome; where the life and manners of the mother country found their closest counterpart; where the great leaders of the greatest movement for freedom were born; where the gigantic figure of Washington first towered above his fellows; where the thinker Jefferson studied, and Patrick Henry cried aloud for war. It was here that many of the great battles of the Revolution were fought, and where, nearly a century later, was to be determined the issue of that greater conflict which has left the fair bosom of Virginia scarred with wounds and her garments soaked in the blood of her children. The theater of two great wars, the birthplace and cradle of statesmen, the home of gentleness, the school of chivalry, the story-book of adventure and romance, every foot of Virginia is historic ground, interesting and necessary to every American who would know the story of his country, or whose blood beats faster at the thought of its heroes.—Sachy's Magazine.

At the present time it is believed that there are 1,400,000,000 human beings on the globe; but let us suppose that there has been but an average of 900,000,000 living at any one time since the creation. Next, to give room for any possible doubt, we will put the average length of life at fifty years. (It may have been much longer than that 5,000 years ago, but has been much shorter for the last thousand years.) With the average length of life as above, we have had two generations of 900,000,000 each every century for the past 6,000 years. Taking this for granted, this globe has had 66,627,843,237,075.266 human inhabitants since the beginning of time. To even bury this vast number the whole landed surface of the globe, every inch of it, would have to be dug over 120 times!—Philadelphia Press.

To the visitor who finds delight in that peculiar romance which intertwines itself among the more hardy realities of colonial life and time, the vine-covered hills and sunny valleys of Virginia will always be a region of unalloyed interest. Its early struggles, its resplendent achievements, its blood-stained and hallowed memories, form a most striking background upon and into which has been interwoven a wealth of romance and legendary lore, which, taken as a whole, lends a charm unknown and impossible to any other section of the Union.—Sarby's Magazine.

Did you ever stop to think how many male and female ancestors were required to bring you into the world? Let us reason together on this subject and see if we cannot prove it to be a most curious and interesting theme to write and talk about.

First, it was very necessary that you should have a father and a mother—that makes two human beings. Each of them must have had a father and a mother, that makes four more human beings. Then, again, each of these four had a father and a mother, making eight more representatives of God's greatest handiwork.

So we go on back to the birth of Christ, or through fifty-six generations in all.

The result of such a calculation, which can be made in a few minutes by any school child, will show that 139,235,017,489,534,976 births must have taken place in order to bring you into this world. Yes, you who read these lines. All this, too, since the beginning of the Christian era, not since the beginning of time, by any means.—Philadelphia Press.

Where a child's name is marked with a ‡, it indicates that that child also married a blood descendant of John Garr, No. 1, page 60.

The figure in the second column on the third or marriage line of each family record indicates the page where the P. O. address may be found of the parent before whose name a * is placed.

Other explanations on pages 60 and 61.

According to Proctor, if from a single pair for 5,000 years each husband and wife had married at twenty-one years of age and there had been no deaths, the population of the earth would now be 2,199,915, followed by 144 ciphers. Verily, the human mind shrinks from contemplating such immense numbers.—Philadelphia Press.

REMEMBER.—As there is no alphabetical index, if you want to find some particular family, go by the P. O. address, and that will refer you to the page where their family record can be found. P. O. addresses, pages 1 to 60. If you don't know their P. O. address, then look for the address of some of their kin; and when found, all the kin are arranged in groups of families, and are easily found. If you don't know any of the kin, nor any P. O. addresses, why please look for them.

EXPLANATIONS.

1. Each name is numbered in the first column of figures.
2. The figures before each name in the second column of figures refer to the page where the same name may be found in another part of the book.
3. In the family records, the figure in the second column of figures before the marriage date, on the third line, is the page where the Postoffice Address may be found of the parent before whose name a * is placed.
4. Each name is numbered, and that number remains the same for that person, no matter how often the name may occur in the book, or on how many different pages.
5. Also, n. h., no heirs; m., married; s., single, sister, or son, just which one of these you can easily tell by the position in which you find it.
6. s. i. l., son-in-law; d., daughter; g. d., grand-daughter; g. s., grand-son.
7. h. before a name signifies Postoffice Address same as parents.
8. m.* before a name signifies person married, address to be found on pages 48 to 55, though I have not their individual family record.
9. s.* signifies single, and Postoffice Address found on pages 57 and 58.
10. Always trace names by the numbers, finding the page first, then the number.
11. Every child in this book of family records is a lineal descendant of JOHN GAR, No. 1, page 60.
12. By means of the numbers (page and number) before each name, each child can trace its ancestry back in unbroken line to JOHN GAR, No. 1, page 60, or from 1657 to 1894—237 years.
13. The date and place of marriage will always be found on the line following the names of the parents.
14. Where a child's name is marked with a †, it indicates that that child also married a blood descendant of John Gar No. 1, page 60.
15. Remember, each family record consists of parents and children. In looking over the book, or searching for names or families, have in mind whether you are searching for parents or children. There are two generations in each family record. Don't get them mixed.
16. When you see the letters f. b. after a name, they signify that that person is the owner of their parents' family Bible record.

Universal custom has caused all respectable families to feel it a moral obligation to erect some monument to mark the places where their dead are buried; it is a filial and sacred duty to thus preserve the names of our parents, to record their ages and the times in which they lived, in such enduring form. Such monuments have a beneficial influence on the living, and are protected by the most stringent laws; but a comprehensive family history is a monument more enduring than the sculptured marble, which is worn away by the "tooth of Time." A monument of little cost, upon which may be inscribed the names, ages, marriages, and deaths of our entire family connection. In consequence of removals from State to State, local monuments erected by loving hands are often far away from the friends who would gladly visit them to read again the epitaphs recorded there; but a family memorial in book form may be carried with us, and kept always ready for reference. This may be entailed in our families from generation to generation, until so long as there remains one to bear our name they may possess an authentic and chronological history from the most remote period to the present time. A book of this character has value because it serves a medium to satisfy the natural desire to be remembered when our work of life is finished. Few persons whose lives have been useful in this world are willing to be forgotten; and yet those in the more humble and obscure walks of life must resign themselves to the probability that, in a few years at most, unless their names are recorded on the page of history, they will be lost to memory. There exists in every heart a fond desire to be remembered by kindred and friends.—Ridlon.

EXPLANATIONS.

1. Each name is numbered in the first column of figures.
2. The figures before each name in the second column of figures refer to the page where the same name may be found in another part of the book.
3. In the family records, the figure in the second column of figures before the marriage date, on the third line, is the page where the Postoffice Address may be found of the parent before whose name a * is placed.
4. Each name is numbered, and that number remains the same for that person, no matter how often the name may occur in the book, or on how many different pages.
5. Also, n. h., no heirs; m., married; s., single, sister, or son, just which one of these you can easily tell by the position in which you find it.
6. s. i. l., son-in-law; d., daughter; g. d., grand-daughter; g. s., grand-son.
7. h. before a name signifies Postoffice Address same as parents.
8. m.^o before a name signifies person married, address to be found on pages 48 to 55, though I have not their individual family record.
9. s.* signifies single, and Postoffice Address found on pages 57 and 58.
10. Always trace names by the numbers, finding the page first, then the number.
11. Every child in this book of family records is a lineal descendant of JOHN GAR, No. 1, page 60.
12. By means of the numbers (page and number) before each name, each child can trace its ancestry back in unbroken line to JOHN GAR, No. 1, page 60, or from 1657 to 1894—237 years.
13. The date and place of marriage will always be found on the line following the names of the parents.
14. Where a child's name is marked with a ‡, it indicates that that child also married a blood descendant of John Gar No. 1, page 60.
15. Remember, each family record consists of parents and children. In looking over the book, or searching for names or families, have in mind whether you are searching for parents or children. There are two generations in each family record. Don't get them mixed.

ABOUT KEEPING FAMILY RECORDS.

ALLOW me to make a few suggestions, which are prompted by my experience in collecting five thousand family records.

1. Write all names in full, and don't write George W. for George Washington, James H. for James Henry, Eliza J. for Eliza Jane, Mary M. for Mary Matilda.

2. Don't write baby names, pet names, or nicknames, such as "Johnnie" or "Jack," for John; "Ollie," for Olive or Oliver; "Allie," for Alice or Albert; "Puss" or "Sis," for Priscilla; "Mandie" or "Maudie," for Amanda or Maud. I feel sorry for some children on account of the foolish and meaningless names they are forced to bear. What's in a name? A great deal. Don't you believe it? Just place in one column fifty names of prominent men; then place in another column the names of fifty men who have struggled for prominence but failed, and compare them.

3. Write in a bold, plain hand, using a good pen and good ink.

4. Write a short historical sketch of your own immediate family and ancestry. Write it first on another sheet and condense it. Don't commence it in the book, for you might use it all up and leave no room for future entries. Tell where you were born; where married; where you have lived; when and where you moved to; your business; where you were educated; and any important incidents in your life.

5. Place on one page the names, dates, etc., of those who died in infancy, or any other names which are now omitted in the book.

6. Especially write all soldier records, giving name and number of regiment, name of commander, battles, campaigns, adventures, etc.

7. At the top of page 500, write plainly your own name, number, and page where your family record is to be found in this book, so it can be easily referred to.

8. Each time that you make an entry in this book, send me a copy of the same, so I can keep my book correct up to date. My permanent P. O. address is KOKOMO, INDIANA.

REMEMBER: Use a good pen, good ink: condense what you have to write, so as to leave some pages for your posterity to fill out.

Each was for many years pastor of the old Lutheran Church in Madison County, Virginia. William Jr. was for twenty-six years pastor of the Lutheran Church in Madison County, Virginia. In 1813 he moved to Boone County, Kentucky, where he was pastor of the Lutheran Church for twenty years.

This record is taken from an entry my father made in his book when he was in Virginia about 1849. Louis Fisher's farm joined the Gaar farms. He was buried on his farm on a beautiful hillside, near a giant chestnut tree. The grave is plainly marked, and I saw it June, 1893, as it was indicated to me by Capt. A. Newton Finks, of Criglersville, Madison County, Va.

I have the names of over one hundred U. S. A. soldiers, also over one hundred C. S. A. soldiers, whose names and regiment I had intended to place on this page. But I have been prevailed upon by many kind friends, whose advice and counsel I dare not disregard, to refrain from including these names for fear of giving possible offense. However, as I intend to publish another volume of history and biography, I desire an opinion from all those directly or indirectly interested as to the advisability of including these two lists of soldiers in my next book.

I shall be pleased to hear from all who are interested in the soldier history of our family. Address

JOHN C. GARR,
Kokomo, Ind.

Concerning Some of the Garrs not Previously Mentioned in this Book.

The early part of the seventeenth century was marked by a great emigration from Germany and Bavaria. These Protestants, or Palatines, encouraged by the "Good Queen Anne," first emigrated to England. "About 1708 thirty-three thousand left their homes in the Rhine country for London. Three thousand six hundred of these were transferred to Ireland, seated upon unimproved lands in the County of Limerick, near Arbela and Adair; others in the town of Rathkeale, where their descendants still reside, and are known to this day as German Palatines, preserving their true German character for industry, thrift, and honorable dealing." Persons who have lately visited them say: "They are the most wealthy and prosperous farmers in the County of Limerick." "They still speak the German language." Thus it will be seen that the English and Irish Garrs are of purely German origin, and I hope at some future time to trace all these families—German, English, Irish, and American Garrs—to one common ancestry, and include all these names in a volume which will be purely and distinctly a genealogy of the GARR family proper.

It has been my good fortune to meet most of these whose names follow here, and they all possess in a marked degree the facial resemblance as well as those moral and religious traits of character and habits of life which characterize the Garr descendants of Andreas Gar.

The "Old German Letters"

OF INTRODUCTION.

Brought from Bavaria in 1732 by ANDREAS GAR (No. 4—page 61).

JOHN WESLEY GARR (No. 900—page 140) had them translated into English in 1840 by a Catholic priest of Jeffersonville, Ind. The original letters are now in possession of Dr. James O. Garr (3094—284), of Kokomo, Ind.

I.

FROM THE LUTHERAN MINISTER AT ILLENSCHWANG.

Grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ and the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Whereas, ANDREAS GAR [4—61], subject of Dünkhoftühl and weaver-master of this town of Illenschwang, has determined to leave this country, with his wife, EVE [7—61], and his five children—viz., JOHN ADAM [8—62] and LORENZ [11—63], ROSINA [9—62], MARIA BARBARA [18—61], and ELIZABETH BARBARA [19—63]—and as I have wished to dissuade the same and his family from their purpose, having been all along very dear parish children of mine, by the grace of God; but their purpose could not be altered, and so, at their request, I furnish them the following testimony, viz.: That the said married couple have been lovers of the Word of God, have constantly attended public worship, and frequently received the sacrament of the "Lord's Supper" after having with devotion attended to the usual Confession and Repentance for sin; and in all other things have lived a Christian life; also that they have raised their children to perform holy and Christian works, so that they may now, as baptized children in the Christian doctrine, with the blessing of God, upon the foundation laid, build the superstructure. I now wish with all my heart that God may continue to govern the whole of them by His grace, to preserve among them His Holy Word, to bless their outgoing and their incoming, to accompany them in all their ways, and to prosper their enterprise, that their spiritual and eternal welfare may thereby be assured, and their temporal interests benefitted. The Lord God say to this, my pastoral wish—Amen!

JOHN LEONARD KISEL, Pastor.

ILLENSCHWANG, April 25, 1732.

II.

FROM THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF DINKELSBUEHL.

Inasmuch as we, Burgomaster and Council of the City of Dünkhoftühl, in the Holy Roman Empire, have been informed by ANDREAS GAR, formerly a citizen of Illenschwang, that he is resolved to emigrate to Pennsylvania, and in consequence has respectfully requested us to furnish him a public certificate showing that he has been a well-behaved citizen among us, and as it respects any blood-relation, he leaves none behind him; and as his request is founded on reason and truth: Therefore, we have thought it right to comply with his petition: Therefore, we certify by these presents that the said petitioner, so far as known unto us, has on all occasions conducted himself praiseworthy, and that he leaves without any blood relations behind him, and without any debts.

In virtue of this, is this certificate given and sealed by the common chancery seal of the city of Dünkhoftühl.

Given in Dünkhoftühl the 26th day of April, 1732.

NOTE.—It was an indignity heaped upon the Lutherans in Bavaria at that time by the Catholic administration at that time in power, that they (the Lutherans), before they could leave Bavaria, should certify that they left no children behind them—or, more particularly, no illegitimate children—to become a burden upon the state. The records show that Andreas Gar left father and brothers behind him.

RECORDS FROM

Illenschwang, Bavaria.

NOTE.—The following letter and records were delivered to me in Dinkelsbuehl, Bavaria, by the Pastor of the Lutheran Church at Illenschwang, five miles from Dinkelsbuehl, and were translated into English by his brother, Lewis Wild, of 13 Canonbury Park, S., London, Eng., on March 1, 1888. J. C. G.

[Translated from the German.]

HONORED SIR :

In accordance with your wish, you will receive inclosed the family certificate, as well as an exact copy of a letter of ANDREAS GAR's [4—61].

I can not trace your genealogy any further back in our register, as ANDREAS GAR came from Frankenhofen. It is impossible to prove the connection between ANDREAS GAR and JOHANN GEORGE GAR, nor is it possible to find the wedding date of ANDREAS GAR's wife's parents.

GEORGE and BARBARA SEIDELMANN were married at some other place, and lived at some other place during the first few years of their wedlock, but this place is not named anywhere.

Concerning my remuneration, I have no guidance, as I never before made such a comprehensive and complicated work, and therefore leave the estimation of my labors in your hands.

You may rest assured that I made a most exhaustive examination of our church registers, to give you a picture as complete as possible. According to our laws, I had to affix a stamp of 50 pfennigs on my certificate.

Inclosed you will find my brothers' addresses, etc. Trusting you will succeed in clearing up all points concerning your family,

I am, etc.,

R. WILD.

NOTE.—It was my good fortune to visit the three brothers—R. Wild, of Illenschwang; L. Wild, of London; and Dr. Theodore Wild, of Chicago.

COPY

Of existing news in the church books of the Pastorate of Illenschwang, concerning the emigration and arrival in Pennsylvania of ANDREAS GAR, subject of Dinkelsbühl and weaver here, who left from this place the 26th of April, 1732, for Pennsylvania, with his wife EVA and his five children—namely, JOHN ADAM, LORENZ, ROSINA, MARIA BARBARA, and ELIZABETH BARBARA—with others, all in good standing, altogether three hundred people, who chose for their pastor Tit (?), the pastor of Scheinbach (three hours from Crailsheim). The above-named ANDREAS GAR has ordered that a clean wooden cross should be made by the carpenter of Neustaedtlein-by-Dinkelsbühl from the three florins which he left; which the carpenter made, as the bill shows.

This was done in remembrance and on supposition that said ANDREAS GAR would possibly not have a cross to be carried before his funeral, or the funeral of one of the party, according the news ANDREAS GAR shall not have reached Pennsylvania, or died immediately after landing.

Against this supposition there arrived in the month of August, 1733, a letter from the oldest son of said GAR, addressed to his godfather, JOHN ADAM ERBEL, dated Feb. 1, 1733, and written in Germantown, a place supposed to be twelve hours from Philadelphia.

The letter says all reached Pennsylvania safe and living, but soon afterwards the other daughter, MARIA BARBARA, died.

He describes the land as being tolerably good, but for religion's sake he wished to be back again in Europe, especially in Germany, etc. He who would not work would be as bad off as in Germany, etc.

After this came a letter to my hand dated Nov. 18, 1732, written by ANDREAS GAR himself.

The contents of this letter are that they all arrived at their destination after a very long and dangerous voyage.

At Rotterdam over four hundred of his faith partook of Holy Communion. There they had to wait six weeks on account of the great number of people.

From there it took eighteen days to bring them to Cowes, in England, on account of contrary winds and heavy ships, and there all the trunks were closely inspected on account of the high tariff. After laying there sixteen days, the ships crossed finally to sea.

His ship arrived in seven weeks and four days, but had to cross before the Gulf Stream eight days, as the wind came against them; but (these are his own words) "God changed the wind, so we arrived safely in Philadelphia, and descending from the ship we thanked our dear Lord that He brought us all sound and safe to this beloved land.

"It is a hard, trying, and long voyage. Thirteen, probably over thirteen, hundred miles. There died six old persons and thirty-six children of small-pox.

"The wine is the life of man. Nice flour, dried meat, and dried fruits are very good. The land is good. Plenty of apples, and better than in Germany. One man preserved twenty-five barrels of apples. There is plenty of fruit, but as dear as in Germany. Cattle are twice as dear as in Germany. There are plenty of forges, smelting-works, foundries, and mills. Everything is free. Anybody can hunt, wherever he wishes, bears, wolves, etc.

"I belong to Germantown, six miles from Philadelphia. Am living with a weaver, and work this winter for half wages [could have got full wages in Illenschwang.—MINISTER]. A good hired man earns 100 florins; a woman forty. Have not yet seen any pine wood, but cedar wood. The most is oak forests. There came two ships with people, some in six weeks, some in eight weeks, and some in ten weeks, but the last one came in eighteen weeks. They suffered great misery, and those that did not die on the sea are mostly sick. I advise no people who have small children to come, as the voyage is too trying, but I do not regret it."

Until here are his own words. That this letter was from him, or from his son, is proven, not only by his handwriting, which was known, but also by his sign, which was given his cousin and him in my presence. "Love of Christ is better than knowledge of everything."

POSTSCRIPT.

In the church annals of Illenschwang it is impossible to follow further the genealogy of the GAR family, as ANDREAS GAR is descended from Frankenhofen. The church books there may give further information, also the birth date of ANDREAS GAR must be found there.

In the death register of this parish is the following, registered from the year 1736: "July 6th. of this year, JOHN GEORGE GAR, princely Brandenburgisch-Onolzbaehisch subject, belonging to the cloister of Aichhausen, near Oettinghen, on the Rhine, and being here, was buried here, aged 68 years 5 months, less one day."

From two of his sons you find in the marriage register the following:

1. "June 8, 1728. JOHN GEORGE GAR, single, second son of the above-mentioned JOHN GEORGE GAR, was married at Sinnbronn to ANNA DOROTHEA WALTERIN, from Welchenholz."

2. "Nov. 6, 1731. JOHN STEPHEN GAR, oldest son of the above-named JOHN GEORGE GAR, was married to JOHANNA MARGARETHA ZIEHER, from Schlierberg."

From the wife of ANDREAS GAR, EVA, a native Seidelmann, it is impossible to find the birth date, also the marriage date of her parents; but it is quite certain that in the year 1700, under the Katechumenen, and from these until 1710, in the confitent register, (is) mentioned EVA SEIDELMANN, later wife of ANDREAS GAR, the daughter of the linen weaver, GEORGE SEIDELMANN and his wife BARBARA. As in the confitent register, the married couple, GEORGE and BARBARA SEIDELMANN, are not mentioned until the year 1692, so it is to be supposed that this married couple came in the year 1691, with their baby daughter EVA, to Illenschwang.

In the above-named year is in this parish birth register the first record of the family made. Wherefrom they came is not mentioned.

Here was born to GEORGE and BARBARA SEIDELMANN the following children:

1. GEORGE ALBRECHT.....born May 10, 1691.
2. OTILLIA..... " Apr. 7, 1694—not baptized.
3. MARY..... " Apr. 23, 1696—died Feb. 19, 1705.
4. HANS GEORGE..... " Apr. 14, 1698— " June 11, 1772.
5. HANS CASPER..... " Nov. 20, 1700.
6. HANS CHRISTOPH..... " June 17, 1705.

Besides these mentioned (of) GEORGE SEIDELMANN, you find in the confitent register from the year 1689 :

“JOHN LEONARD SEIDELMANN, a farmer's son, from Duhren, parish of Wittleshofen, marries EVA, daughter of the farmer, LEONARD KREBS, from Oberschwanningen.”

The marriage is in Illenschwang, and the bridal couple make their home in Illenschwang.

It is possible to trace the SEIDELMANN family further in the parish register at Wittleshofen, where Duhren belongs to.

Records from Frankenhofen, Bavaria.

The following records were furnished me by Rev. Bruderlein, pastor of the Lutheran Church in Frankenhofen, Bavaria, with whom I had the pleasure of a visit during my trip to Bavaria in 1888.

[Translated from the German.]

FRANKENHOFEN (BY DINKELSBÜHL), April 6, 1888.

DEAR SIR:

I am sorry that I was unable to fulfill your commission from the 2d of March earlier than to-day. The cause is, I had heavy business affairs to transact in the last four weeks, and then your commission took me a long time; also, am sorry that the result of my work is not equal to the care I took of it, and I fear will not satisfy you.

To account for unsatisfactory results, I mention this:

The church registers of our parish go back only to the year 1609. Frankenhofen was up to 1588 a dependent parish of Aufkirchen (three-quarters of an hour from here), was twice (in the great City War and in the War of Thirty Years) destroyed; and it seems that on these occasions all church registers, baptism, marriage, and death registers of Frankenhofen were lost or in some other way destroyed at this time.

I must also ask you to be satisfied with the little I could find after repeated perusals of all the church registers I could find.

You ask in your letter of March 2d the following dates:

1. When was CATHERINE GAR born? Oct. 23, 1683.
2. Married? She died, as you will see in the affidavit, May 15, 1684.

But I found by a second perusal of the books that KATHERINE GAR had two brothers—JOHANNES and JOHN MARTIN—besides ANDREAS, who was born in 1685, and emigrated.

The copies of the birth, marriage, and death you will find in my affidavit.

The date of the death of JOHN GAR, brother of ANDREAS, is not to be found.

3. Where was JOHN GAR, the father of ANDREAS GAR, married?

The marriage register of our parish begins 1700. As JOHN GAR in 1683 had a daughter, so he must have been married at least in the year 1682.

I am sorry I can not give you an account of this. The same I have to say of your third question.

In this question it was only possible for me to find the date of the death of JOHN GAR, father of ANDREAS GAR.

From the death date, which copy you find in the affidavit, and the "C No. 1," it is very easy to find the birth date of JOHN GAR—that is, November 17, 1657.

As our parish registers do not contain the birth date, it is to be supposed that JOHN GAR was not born in Frankenhofen, but that he came there as a grown man, and probably already married.

Should I be able to give you other news, I am very willing to do so.

The cost of this is 21 marks and 16 pfennigs, German money, as the perusal of all the parish books took about fourteen days.

With the highest regards, respectfully yours,

BRUDERLEIN, Pastor.

NOTE.—I have endeavored to give a verbatim copy of these records as they are recorded in the Court Books. The peculiar wording or spelling may or may not be by the clerk of the court, as these people wrote and spoke the German language almost exclusively, and their legal papers and documents were drawn up by lawyers, ministers, or court clerks, who were supposed to be better versed in the King's English. WILL OF LORENZ GAAR.

(No. 11, page 63.)

I, Larence Gar, of the Parish of Bromfield and County Culpeper, being sick and weak in body, but of sound mind and memory (thanks to Almighty God for the same), do make this my last will and testament in manner and form following:

First—I recommend my soul to God who gave it, trusting and surely believing that through the merits of my blessed Saviour, Jesus Christ, to receive full remission and forgiveness of all my sins. My body I commit to the earth, to be decently buried at the direction of my executors hereafter named.

Inprimis.—I give to my beloved brother, Adam Gar, two hundred acres of land out of a tract of four hundred acres, to be taken off with a cross-line lying under the foot of the Racket (?) Mountains, upon Hughes (?) River, unto him and his heirs forever.

Inprimis.—I give unto my beloved wife, Dorothea Gar, two hundred and fifty acres of land, with the plantation whereon I now reside.

Idc.—After her decease, if she not marries; but in case she should marry, she is to stay no longer.

Till my son John is of age, I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife one hundred and fifty acres of land out of a tract of two hundred and ninety acres which I possess in my own right and title on the South River of Shenandoah, till after her decease.

I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Dorothea, all my personal estate or goods and chattels, till after her decease, if in case she does not marry; but if she doth marry, then she is to have the third part of all my personal estate or goods and chattels.

And I also give unto my beloved wife, Dorothea, one servant boy unto her and her heirs; and the said servant is to have one year free of his servitude.

Inprimis.—I give and bequeath unto my beloved sons, John Gar and Andreas Gar, the tract of land whereon I now live, with the plantation and houses together, and two tracts of land more joining to the said tract, together containing four hundred and fifty acres of land, to be equally divided between my above-said two sons, to them and their heirs forever; and my above-said son John is to have the first choice of the land. I also give unto my son John one rifle gun,* to him and his heirs forever.

Imprimis.—I give unto my beloved daughter, Elizabeth Gar, two hundred acres of land which I possess, unto her and her heirs forever, the said land lying and being under the foot of the Racket (?) Mountains, upon Hughes (?) River.

Imprimis.—I give unto my beloved daughter, Eva Gar, one hundred and forty acres of land of the said my tract, to be taken off two hundred and ninety acres, to her and her heirs forever; and after my beloved wife Dorothea Gar's decease, the said my daughter, Eva Gar, is to have the whole tract of my two hundred and ninety acres of land, unto her heirs forever, lying and being in Augusta County, on the South River of the Shenandoah.

And I will that all my personal estate, or goods and chattels, be equally divided between my sons and daughters after my wife Dorothea Gar's decease or marriage.

Lastly, I make and ordain my beloved wife, Dorothea Gar, and my beloved brother, Adam Gar, Executors of this my last will and testament.

Revoking all other wills by me made, and in witness that this be my last will and testament, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this nine-and-twentieth day of October, 1753.

Signed, sealed, and delivered in the presence of us:

WILL OF LEWIS FISHER.

(See page 521.)

In the name of God, Amen. I, Lewis Fisher, of Culpeper County, being in a low state of health, but sound and perfect memory, thanks be to Almighty God for it, and calling to mind the uncertainty of this-worldly affairs, have thought fit to make and ordain this my last will and testament, in manner and form following :

I desire my body may be buried in such decent and Christian-like manner as my Executors shall think fit, and as to those worldly goods wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me, I will and bestow in manner and form following, viz. :

I give and bequeath to my loving wife, Barbara Fisher, all my personal estate, to dispose of as she shall think proper. Likewise I lend to my loving wife the plantation and land whereon I now do live, during her life; after her decease I give it to my son, Barnet Fisher. It is my will that Barnet Fisher and Adam Fisher shall pay my son, Steven Fisher, twenty pounds, as the land I gave them was of more value than Steven's. Barnet must pay fifteen pounds, and Adam five pounds, which is the difference of their lands. Also my will is if my Germany estate should be recovered it should be equally divided among all my children. And I do hereby constitute and appoint my sons, Steven Fisher and Adam Fisher, joint Executors of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking and disannulling all other will or wills, testament or testaments, before made by me. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this fourth day of February, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy-three.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of:

JOHN TOMPKINS.

JACOB WILHOIT.

MARK FINKS [page 524].

At a Court held for Culpeper County, the 19th day of July, 1773, this last will and testament of Lewis Fisher, deceased, was exhibited to the Court by Stephen Fisher and Adam Fisher, the executors therein named, and was proved by the oaths of Jacob Wilhoit and Mark Finks, witnesses thereto, and ordered to be recorded; and on motion of the said Executors, certificate is granted them for obtaining a probate thereof in due form, they having sworn to the same and given bond and security, according to law.

Teste:

JOHN JAMES, Clerk.

I, C. B. Payne, Clerk of the Court of Culpeper County, in said State, which is a court of record, do certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the last will and testament of Lewis Fisher, as appears of record. Given under my hand and official seal, this 21st day of January, 1890.

BIOGRAPHIES.

JOHN GAR, the Elder (No. 1, page 60).

The oldest record that has been found concerning the Gar family is to be seen in the Death Register of the parish church of Frankenhofen, near Dinkelsbuehl:

“Catherine, daughter of Hans (John) and Elizabeth Gar, died May 15, 1684, aged seven months, less one week, and was buried on the 17th, with song and bell-tolling from the tower, to her last sleep.”

After this is recorded the births of Andreas Gar, 1685, and his brothers—John, 1693, and John Martin, 1697. The next record touches directly the subject of our sketch, and I reproduce it in full, as translated from the German:

“The 22d May, 1738, afternoon, between three and four o’clock, died tranquilly, and was buried the 24th, John Gar the older, Grand Ducal Wurtembergisch subject and weaver, eighty years old, less six months and five days—a man who meant sincerely with God and his neighbors, and whose memory is properly blessed, because nothing but good and praiseworthy can be said of him.”

John Gar was a native of Franconia—one of the divisions of Bavaria—of German nationality, and a lineal descendant of the Gars who were honored with a crest by the great Emperor Charles V. in 1519. This family was mentioned then as an “old and very good family.” He was a devout Lutheran, and the probability is that the Gars espoused the cause of the great Reformer at a very early date. To be a Frank meant to be a freeman; and a race accustomed to large liberties could not well brook the despotism maintained at that time by the Roman See; and when Martin Luther so boldly promulgated free religious thought and personal responsibility to God alone, the Gars were to be found zealously engaged in his cause. To this day the Gars, both in Faderland and America, are with scarce an exception Protestant in religion.

To what extent the Gars engaged in the fierce civil and religious wars of that period we do not know. What were their varying fortunes we are left to surmise. Suffice it to say that our record finds John Gar living in the little village of Frankenhofen, and engaged in the peaceful occupation of weaving. Evidently he had come to this place from some other, for no record earlier than the death record of his infant child, Catherine, can be found; but here for fifty-four years he so lived as to leave a record of character that can not be improved upon. Loved and honored by his neighbors, living a peaceful, industrious life, he rears his family in the fear of God, and engrafs into his posterity those traits of character that follow them from generation to generation.

But a great trial comes to the good man in his declining years. His oldest son, the pride of his life and the stay of his old age, has heard of the new colony of Pennsylvania, founded by the great William Penn in America, to whose domains are invited the persecuted of the world, with the assurance of religious liberty. A company is formed to emigrate, and Andreas Gar is a leader among them. Perhaps nothing but old age keeps the father from going. He could not survive the long and perilous voyage. With what anxious solicitude the patriarch must have waited for news from his long-absent loved ones, and what joy must have filled his soul to know that they had arrived safely, and were established in peace and full religious liberty. "Now let thy servant depart in peace" could well have been the prayer of this man of God as he neared his fourscore years. Tranquilly committing his soul to the mercy of his Father, and trusting in the promise of a loving Saviour, he, too, emigrates to a better country, leaving a blessed memory behind him.

ANDREAS GAR (No. 4, page 61).

Andreas Gar, the head of the American branch of this family, was born in Frankenhofen, Bavaria, June 14th, 1685. His father, Hans Gar, a weaver, was "a humble and devout man." His mother's name was Elizabeth. So attests the Parish Book of Frankenhofen. He was married to Eva, daughter of George Seidemann, at Dinkelsbuehl, February 23d, 1711, in due accordance with the ceremonies of the Lutheran Church. Twelve children were the offspring of this union, seven of whom died at their home in Illenschwang, near Dinkelsbuehl. Andreas Gar followed the occupation of his father, a weaver, and became a weaver master, which indicates that he possessed skill of no ordinary degree. This humble scion of a once powerful family was destined to become the progenitor of a great multitude of descendants, who now form a desirable portion of the citizenship of the United States. The few meager details of his life on available record reveal to us a character that possessed traits which have been largely transmitted to his posterity.

On the walls of the old Lutheran church at Illenschwang hang paintings of the Twelve Apostles. On the back of one of these is written the name of Andreas Gar as donor. In the church book a record is made that Andreas Gar had left three florins to have a "clean wooden cross" made in memory of him, should he not be heard from and deemed as lost on the voyage to America. The cross was made and paid for, but another record describes the voyage and safe arrival in Andreas Gar's own words. After partaking of the Holy Communion at Rotterdam, they committed themselves to God's mercy. They were storm-tossed for weary weeks on the sea, but "God changed the wind so we arrived safely in Philadelphia, and, descending from the ship, we thanked our dear Lord that he brought us all safe and sound to this beloved land."

Before leaving his old home he secured a letter from his pastor, which reveals not only his religious standing, but his desire to be placed in proper relation to his brethren in the New World. Citizenship is not forgotten, and so he applies to the burgomaster and city council for a letter of character, and the seal of the ancient city of Dinkelsbuehl attests that Andreas Gar has been a good citizen, and that he is worthy of all confidence and esteem.

ABRAM SAAR.

These letters, worn and yellow with age, are now in possession of the writer. They indicate a type of character that should be a pattern for every descendant who would honor his ancestors. What called this man, more than a century and a half ago, to leave his native land, forsake his home, the graves of his household and his loved church, to undertake a tedious inland journey and a perilous voyage by sea to a rude and savage land? Why did he leave the fertile and sunny plain of Dinkelsbuehl to settle at last on the sterile soil and forbidding hills of Virginia? Neither riches nor honor invited him; poverty and privation awaited him; no lordly grant or royal appointment tempted him, and he knew that even his occupation would not avail him in this crude land. It was enough that he had heard that in the New World there was religious freedom. With a martyr's devotion he could give up all for this. And so, like Abraham of old, he was called out by the voice of God from the land of his fathers to found, in a new nation, a race of men and women who worship God and love their fellow men.

No record of his death can be found; no stone marks his last resting-place. What matters it! We record here his virtues, and we rear to his memory a monument more enduring than marble. The descendants of Andreas Gar should ever be proud of their ancestor, strive to imitate his character, and benefit by that glorious liberty for which he sacrificed so much and which we so fully enjoy.

Sixth Generation.

LORENZ GAR (No. 61, page 63).

“Hail to Posterity!

Hail, future men of Germanopolis!

Let the young generations yet to be

Look kindly upon this.

Think how your fathers left their native land—

Dear German-land! O sacred hearths and homes!

And, where the wild beast roams,

In patience planned

New forest-homes beyond the mighty sea;

There, undisturbed and free,

To live as brothers of one family.

What pains and cares befell—

What trials and what fears—

Remember, and wherein we have done well

Follow our footsteps, men of coming years.

Where we have failed to do

Aright, or wisely live,

Be warned by us—the better way pursue;

And, knowing we were human, even as you,

Pity us and forgive!

Farewell, Posterity! Farewell, dear Germany!—

Forevermore, farewell!”

So sang the good Francis Daniel Pastorius more than two hundred years ago. A ripe scholar, lawyer, and poet, the founder of Germantown, and agent of the German Land Company, he looked closely after the interests of his people, induced immigration, and patiently did a work that has left its stamp on the character and history of his people. Through his influence a wilderness was transformed into a thriving village of gardens and vineyards. Flax was grown and manufactured into thread and linen cloth. To this little Eden the good ship Royal Judith brought the colony from Dinkelsbuehl. Perhaps the silver-haired poet welcomed these tired, sick pilgrims to the freedom and hospitality of this blessed land. Perhaps no one in all that company of home-seekers more fully drank in the beauty of the scenery, the wonderful novelty of everything, and the strange, new sense of boundless liberty, than the stalwart, fair-haired, blue-eyed German youth, Lorenz Gar; sixteen years old—just the age when the impulsive desires of youth are mingled with sweetest hopes of budding manhood. And now, what mountains to climb!—what trackless forests to explore! A thousand schemes present themselves; but the well-trained German boy is mindful of parental advice, and duty is always heeded before pleasure. The tide of German immigration is flowing up the beautiful Shenandoah Valley. The sequestered nooks and glens at the base of the Blue Ridge Mountains offer a pleasant retreat for the wanderers, and soon the family of Andreas Gar is settled in Virginia. A large tract of land is taken, and German thrift transforms a wilderness into a home. I imagine that the youthful Lorenz soon became acquainted with the haunts of the bear, deer, and wild turkey, to say nothing of the beautiful trout streams which abounded on every hand. His trusty rifle and dogs became inseparable companions. "Gaar's Mountain" was famous in those days as a retreat for the wily fox; and, though generations have passed away, it still holds its right to be the great meeting-ground for those who love the chase.

The peaceful years roll by, and Lorenz takes to himself a fair German maiden for his wife. He has known her long and well. Thrown in close contact during the long and perilous voyage to America, who knows but the first impulses of love were felt even then by the youthful pair. Married life in those primitive times was not unmingled pleasure. The log cabin was the home, while the necessities of life were obtained by severe labor, with the crudest means of help. The tobacco crops soon exhausted the not too fertile soil, and new lands must be cleared to renew the demands. But in spite of all difficulties Lorenz thrived, and many broad acres of hill and hollow became his. To his household were added first, John, then Andrew, and later Eve and Elizabeth, to fill the cup of joy to overflowing. To the home-loving German a house full of children is a joy indeed.

How transient is life, and how quickly earth's sweetest hopes may fade away! In the prime of life, in the midst of prosperity, and surrounded by everything calculated to make life desirable, Lorenz is stricken with disease—a sickness unto death. In this hour of trial and suffering religion sustains the devoted man. He calmly makes his last will. First committing his soul to God and his body to earth, he bequests his property equitably to his wife and children. He does not forget the older brother, who has shared in his trials, and who has no doubt often assisted him by well-timed aid and advice. He also wills his loved rifle to his oldest son, to be kept in the family forever.

As was the custom of the times, Lorenz Gar was buried on his own land in the family burying-ground, perhaps by the side of his father and mother—a place unmarked to this day, and perhaps irrecoverably lost. Nevertheless, his ashes rest as peacefully as if marked by human work. The mountain shadows steal gently across his bed; the wind moans through the low pines; the noisy mountain brook ripples on forever; the wild fox makes his lair amid the briars that cover the grave of his ancient enemy, and is not disturbed.

It was to the character of such men as Lorenz Gaar that Virginia owes her greatness. Brave and true, lovers of God and forgetting not a brother, such men are a bulwark to society, the State, and the Nation.

JOHN GAAR (No. 42, page 68).

The subject of this sketch was born A. D. 1744. He was a son of Lorentz Gaar (11—63), and grandson of Andreas Gaar (4—61), the head of the American branch of the family. Of the early life of John Gaar we know nothing. No saying of his, no incident connected with his life, no letter, no portrait, nothing has come to us from the irrevocable past with which to form a correct estimate of his character. Probably he was a man who had no particular or extraordinary trait of character to distinguish him from other men. What we know of him we gather mainly from musty and long-forgotten wills, deeds, inventories, sale bills, administrators' reports, etc.—now a part of the records of Orange, Culpeper, and Madison Counties of Virginia. From the will of his father, Lorentz Gaar, we incidentally discover that he had not yet become "of age."

From this will we extract the following clause, viz.: "I give and bequeath unto my beloved sons, John Gaar and Andreas Gaar, the tract of land whereon I now live, with the plantation and house together, and two tracts of land more chining (joining) to the said tract, together containing four hundred and fifty acres of land, to be equally divided between my above said two sons, to them and their heirs forever, and my above said son John is to have the first choice of the land." As a further testimonial of his regard for his son John, the will devises to him "one ríffel gun, to him and his heirs forever." Lorentz Gaar did not long survive after the making of this will (October 1753), for we find that it was probated "at a court held for the County of Culpeper, on Thursday, the 16th day of May, 1754."

Concerning the early training of the fatherless boy we are left in the deepest obscurity. From family records we learn that he married Margaret (Peggy) Wilhoit about 1765. At this time he was perhaps twenty-one years of age. Their first child, Lawrence (194—68)—named perhaps after his grandfather—was born in 1767. Our next authentic record of John Gaar is to be found in the "Communion Book" of the old Lutheran church near Madison Court House, Va. This book—the names written in German—shows that, on December 25, 1775, "Johannes Gaar (42—68) and ux (wife) Margaret, Andreas Gaar (43—68) and ux Christina, Ludwig (Louis) Gaar (24—64) and ux Catherine, Benjamin Gaar (25—64) and ux Margaret, Michael Gaar (23—64) and ux Elizabeth, with others, partook of "the Holy Communion." This entry, though insignificant in itself, not only shows that in his young manhood John Gaar was a church communicant, but it throws a flood of light on the character of the early Gaars in Virginia.

MY MOTHER—ANNA (GLORE) GARR.

“Johannes” and “Andreas” were the sons of Lorentz Gaar mentioned above, and “Ludwig,” “Benjamin,” and “Michael” the sons of John Adam Gaar, brother of Lorentz. Like their pious ancestor, Andreas Gaar, they were of the Lutheran faith, and no doubt, at this period at least, were devout men. Six years later (1781) John Gaar makes his will. This will is quaint, not only in its orthography, but in its manner of devising property. The high regard for womankind, which seems to have characterized Germans since the days of Tacitus, displays itself here. He bequeaths to his “well-beloved wife, Margaret Gaar, the land with the plantation” he was then living on, “during her natural life;” also all his “stock of all kind, with all the house'all furniture.” He likewise makes her one of his “executors.” In early life he traveled the then unbroken forests of West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky, and near where Lexington, Ky., now stands acquired a large tract of land. In his will he says: “As at this time I have a chance of giting of land at Cantuck [Kentucky], and if I should git any land there, to be equally divided among my sons.” This was in 1781, at the close of the Revolutionary War. Neither he nor any of his sons ever obtained the possession of this land or any part of it. A rival claimant held it. His will is short, and while it is peculiarly lacking in correct orthography and grammatical construction, it is in the main plain and direct, and does not leave the reader in doubt as to its meaning. Possessing nothing but a copy to judge from, we can not, at this distant day, tell whether this will was written by John Gaar himself or by some other person. If it is the work of his own hand, it must be remembered that the educational facilities in colonial Virginia during his boyhood days (1744–1764) were very limited; that at the early age of nine years he was left without the support and counsel of a father. It is also very probable that what education he may have acquired was obtained from German teachers and in the German language. Owing to these facts it could hardly be expected that he be perfect in his use of the “Queen’s English.”

John Gaar departed this life in the year 1808, and in his sixty-fourth year. He was thrown from a horse and killed. He left a large personal estate, if we judge by the bond ($10,000) given by his administrators. His debts, as reported by his administrators, July 25, 1811, were less than $100. The executors named in his will did not qualify, and his sons Aaron and Benjamin were appointed the administrators.

John Gaar left surviving him his wife Margaret and his twelve children—Lawrence, Abraham, John, Aaron, Elizabeth (Betsey), Rosanna, Leah, Dina, Margaret, Felix, and Benjamin—six sons and six daughters. The oldest ten were then married. The wife and mother, Margaret, survived her husband fifteen years. She was a woman who had the respect and confidence of her husband, her children, and her neighbors; and when the thread of her useful life had been severed, she was carried from her home to her grave—one hundred yards distant—the passage-way on either side being lined with her sorrowful and weeping relations, slaves, and neighbors.

JOHN WALCOTT GARRET.

BENJAMIN GARR (No. 205, page 85).

Benjamin Garr (or Gaar) was born in Madison County, Virginia, February 17, 1788. He was the youngest of a family of twelve children—six boys and six girls. On his father's side was Lawrence (or Lorenz) Gaar, his grandfather; and Andreas Gaar, his great-grandfather. This Andreas Gaar was the founder of the American family by that name. Both his grandfather and great-grandfather Gaar were born near the city of Dinkhofbuhl, Bavaria, Germany.

Little is known of the early life of Benjamin Garr. He is known to have inherited a vigorous constitution, and in his early manhood was noted for his wonderful strength and courage. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, being stationed at Norfolk, Va. He at one time made a trip to the State of Georgia on horseback. The writer—a grandson—remembers his detailing a visit to the tribe of Cherokee Indians then inhabiting Northern Georgia; how these denizens of the forest sat in a circle around a kettle of boiling hominy; how the chief of the tribe, dipping a large wooden spoon into the kettle, would fill his mouth with hot hominy, and pass the spoon to grandfather, who would go through a similar ceremony, and pass the spoon to his next neighbor, and so on around the circle, each taking his turn at "feeding" until the hominy vanished.

On January 8, 1815, and in his twenty-seventh year, the subject of our sketch was married to Nancy Smith, daughter of William Downing Smith and Diana Yeager. In the year 1828 Benjamin Garr removed with his family from Madison County, Va., to Jefferson County, Ky., and settled near Bear Grass Creek, nine miles southeast of Louisville, Ky. Here, in the course of time, he became a large landholder. Here his children grew up, were married, and from there most of them removed to Johnson and Howard Counties in Indiana.

October 4, 1862, was an eventful day in the life of Benjamin Garr, for it was on that day that his wife Nancy, with whom he had lived for nearly a half century, with a smile upon her face passed from this life forever. This, and the burning of his old home a short time thereafter, was a stroke from which his strong spirit never rallied. On March 7, 1870, at the ripe old age of 82, he yielded up his spirit and was laid away to rest. Close beside one of the many beautiful drives in Cave Hill Cemetery, at Louisville, Ky., stand side by side two modest marble slabs. These mark the head of two graves, in which repose all that is mortal of Benjamin Garr and his wife Nancy.

Benjamin Garr was no ordinary man. He was possessed of a commanding physique. Large, portly, a large head set upon broad shoulders, heavy eyebrows overshadowing dark deep-set eyes, with large aquiline nose, he was the embodiment of power and self-possession. His movements and bearing were those of a patrician—a man born to command admiration and respect from all with whom he came in contact. He was not a hard worker in the sense of performing manual labor. He was built for a different purpose; he was a thinker, a planner. Had he been educated in the law, he would have made a most excellent judge. He was often called on by his neighbors to settle disputes; to assist in the division of property; to administer upon estates. "Uncle Ben," as he was familiarly called by his neighbors, was noted for his good judgment, high integrity, and strict impartiality in his dealings among his fellows. Had he lived in this day and generation, he would have made a most excellent banker or business man. All of his business ventures were successful. He had an intuitive idea when and how to make investments. As his children grew up, he had a father's solicitude for their welfare. He advised their removal with their increasing families from the thickly settled and high-priced lands of Kentucky to the wilder, but richer and cheaper, lands of Indiana. Increasing time has confirmed the wisdom of his foresight.

While he was the youngest of his father's children, he bore toward them the relation of "elder brother." His advice and companionship were sought by them. His next-to-the-oldest brother, Abram, residing near Richmond, Ind., and the head of the "Gaar family" at that place, came on horseback to Kentucky along in the thirties to visit "Brother Ben." His children nearly always addressed him or spoke of him as "Father." Though many of them were self-willed, they invariably bore toward him unquestioned obedience. They had respect for their father's judgment and opinions. He was not stern; he was firm. He was kindly disposed toward his grandchildren, all of whom had great respect and reverence for "Grandpap," as he was called by them. The same face that could look like a lion's, when aroused, could brighten in the presence of a child and win his affection.

He lived as he died—respected, honored, and loved by all who knew him.

NEWTON B. SMITH [3102—285].

KOKOMO, IND., April 1, 1894.

JOHN WESLEY GARR, M. D.,

Son of Benjamin Garr and Nancy (Smith) Garr, was born on the ancestral farm in Madison Co., Virginia, August 3, 1817, and died at his home near Kokomo, Indiana, May 30, 1866.

Dr. Garr's father was of full German blood, but his mother came of English stock. He was among the first of the German children to receive English instruction, which was imparted at that time by the talented but eccentric Rosser, whose name will be familiar to some of the readers of this book.

At the age of eleven Wesley's father moved to Kentucky, near Louisville, where some years of his life were devoted to the severest labor in opening up and improving the new farms.

It was not until near the age of manhood that Wesley felt the desire for an education that soon absorbed his mind for some years to come. He did not hesitate to undertake the accomplishment of his desires. He advanced rapidly, and soon found himself taking the full classical course at Kenyon College, Ohio, which was then flourishing under the famous Bishop McHvaine.

Ill health compelled him to suspend his studies at college, but never during the succeeding years did his studious habits abate. At the age of twenty-three he formed the acquaintance of Miss Anna Clore, and so successfully and ardently did he press his suit that a few short months found the young couple mated for life.

Eight children were born to this union, three of whom died in early life, while five still survive to bless the declining years of the dear old mother.

Dr. Garr received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from the University of Louisville, Ky., in 1850. This school was at that time in the zenith of its prosperity, embracing in its faculty such great lights as S. D. Gross, Charles Caldwell, Dan Drake, and others.

Dr. Garr thoroughly enjoyed the study of medicine, but the practice was distasteful to him, and was soon given up.

Farm life, with its varied activities and its lordly independence, suited his disposition far better. Such a life gave him free opportunity to pursue his studies in such lines as pleased him, and though few men could show better or more results of his labor, yet never for a moment was his mind inactive in all that pertains to the scientific advancement of the times.

In politics he was ever prominent and active. To be in a hopeless minority did not dampen his efforts, but rather increased his party zeal. He was an inveterate reader, yet sought only the literature of the best thinkers of the age. In all that pertained to the best interests of society and of his own locality, he was ever the foremost in movement. His many deeds of private charity perhaps few but the recipients could tell. No one loved better to assist those who were struggling toward better things. His domestic traits were a shining example. To his wife, he was always a youthful lover. His children can never forget his wise counsel and the intense concern he felt for their welfare. To make of them intelligent, honest, and useful citizens was his constant aim. He was sociable to an eminent degree. His home was noted for its free table and open doors. Among his friends were numbered many of the prominent men and women of the State.

The ties of blood were strong in him, and no man among the great Garr Clan strove harder to preserve the traditions and the history of the family. His social nature made him welcome everywhere, and no hearthstone gathering lacked mirth or good-will where he was present. The foundation for this Genealogy was begun by him many years ago, and but for his early work, so much that is now useful to us would have been irrecoverably lost. The great Civil War so divided the families that the work ceased; and with the bush of strife and the resumption of social relations came also the stroke that stilled the pen of the family historian.

In his death his family and society sustained a great loss; but to none came the sense of its magnitude more than to the writer of this tribute. Accustomed to lean on his strong judgment and to be guided in all things by his counsel, looking forward to life made easier by his help, the all-too-sudden calamity came with a force felt in all these years.

My first recollection of great-grandfather Abraham Gaar dates back to the time when I was a child of six years. He occasionally came to town to spend the day with his son Jonas, and always inquired for me. If I was not at home, he would come to the school-house and call me out, and I would be excused. He would take me by the hand and say: "'Tis great-grandpap has come to see you; are you glad?" Then he would put his hand into his long coat pocket and bring out a big ginger cake, with scalloped edge and a raisin in the center, and say: "Here, sis, great-grandpap hasn't forgotten you." We generally spent the day together. His farm, now occupied by his son, "Uncle Larkin Gaar," is situated south of town, near Elk Horn. It contained an orchard which was famous throughout the county for its abundant and fine fruit. It was his annual custom to fill his big wagon time and again with its products, which he distributed among his less fortunate neighbors. Many a small boy was thankful to him for the fruit he enjoyed on his place. It was his habit to invite all the children in to help enjoy all the peaches, apples, pears, etc.; and he would always remark, "Boys, those are pretty good," and smack his lips and say, "Eat all you want; they won't hurt you," he returning to his country home in the evening.

Physically he was a man of large stature, raw-boned, heavy-set, and measured over six feet in height. He had a frank and open countenance, and a very friendly face—one that a person would naturally be attracted by. He dressed in a light drab doeskin suit, the coat made large and roomy and long, with large pockets and wide flaps. His hat was a tall silk beaver, with long and fuzzy nap of the color of his clothes.

He was a man revered for his generous, genial, kindly, and social disposition.

FIELDING GARR (No. 836, page 133).

Fielding Garr was born in Madison County, Virginia, August 19, 1794, and was the son of Abraham Gaar and Dinah (Weaver) Gaar. While young he had to labor hard, and had very little chance for a school education; but was very well read, all, or most all, of which he gained himself. In 1805 he, with his father's family, moved to Kentucky, and in 1807 to the State of Indiana, where he remained with his father's family. A few years after he became acquainted with a young lady, Paulina Turner, and after an acquaintance of four years they were married. They settled in Wayne County, Indiana.

Fielding, with his father's family, were the first to settle in Wayne County, Indiana, and found much difficulty, and had to labor hard to clear the land to make nice farms and houses. During their stay in Wayne County they had ten children born to them—five boys and five girls.

About 1840 he became acquainted with Mormon preachers, and soon became a member. About 1842 he resolved to go to Winter Quarters in Iowa with the Latter Day Saints. Just before their departure Paulina, his beloved wife and companion, departed this life in November, 1844, thus leaving him with a family of seven children, on their way to Utah.

Fielding Garr had very much self-control, and had an excellent temper; he seldom got vexed, and always used good language, and was loved by many.

In 1846 he moved to Council Bluffs, and in 1847 to Utah. He was among those who came to Utah the first year—that is, 1847. In the fall of 1847 he landed in Salt Lake Valley with seven children; one, the eldest, Eliza Jane, stayed in the State of Indiana. He at this time had to seek employment of some kind. He took to stock-raising, and was soon the owner of a large herd of cattle on the antelope land in Great Salt Lake Valley.

Fielding Garr was of an excellent disposition, and was a lover of society. At this time—a very early day in Utah—the young people were always around where he was. Young boys were more taken up with his society than they were with those of their own age. He always took delight in instructing the young. He was a very robust, large, square-framed man, weighing 225 pounds, with a mild, open countenance. He had a very mild, fascinating voice—nothing gruff or uncouth. He was one that was never in trouble. He never borrowed trouble, never had a lawsuit, and never was sued. He always had friends, and plenty of them, and always took a liking in entertaining them.

In June, 1855, he was taken sick, and on the 15th of the same month he departed this life, leaving eight children and many friends to mourn his loss. Those of his children who were at his bedside at his death were John, Nancy, Abel, Caroline, Sarah, Benjamin, and William.

At the time of his death, Fielding Garr was sixty-one years of age. He was a good neighbor, and a kind, loving, and affectionate father.

ABRAM GAAR (No. 2774, page 258).

Abram Gaar, president of the great manufacturing company of Gaar, Scott & Co., Richmond, Ind., died at his suburban home near that city, of diabetes, on February 10, 1894.

He was born in Wayne County, Ind., November 14, 1819; and as his father moved to Richmond when he was in his infancy, he was almost a life-long resident of that city, with which his history is so closely interwoven. He attended what schools there were then, but spent most of his younger days in his father's cabinet shop, where he passed an apprenticeship. Being a natural mechanic, he worked at pattern-making, also making woolen machinery. When he was but eighteen years of age misfortune came to his father, and he was thrown out of work. In 1839 and 1840 he worked with Abel Thornburg at millwrighting, but after that went to school, attending school last in 1842, when James M. Poe, later Mayor of Richmond, was teacher. In 1843 he went to work for J. M. & J. H. Hutton, in the old Spring Foundry Machine Shops. Here he worked until 1849, letting his wages stand; and then he, with his father, Jonas Gaar, his brother, J. M. Gaar, and William G. Scott, bought the plant and formed the partnership of A. Gaar & Co., which continued in the manufacture of threshing machinery until 1870, when it was incorporated under the name of Gaar, Scott & Co., and Abram Gaar became president, which office he filled until his death.

Thus was laid the foundation of one of the most extensive manufacturing properties in Indiana, and one productive of much good. It has laid the foundation of many large fortunes, supported thousands of families, educated many thousands of first-class mechanics, paid out many millions of dollars in wages, and has done its share in developing the resources of this entire country by furnishing improved machinery, with the use of which farmers have been enabled to reach results in the improvement and tilling of their farms to an extent almost undreamed of before their time. At the time of his death Mr. Gaar was still closely identified with the firm.

Politically Mr. Gaar was a Democrat until the repeal of the Missonri compromise, when he left that party and became a Republican. He never belonged to any secret orders, but was always a strong temperance man, and identified with those societies. In 1867 he joined the Methodist Church, of which his wife had been a member since 1851. He has always been a liberal man in church work, doing much good there. In all enterprises tending to the betterment of mankind his purse was always open, and he was a liberal donor to anything for the benefit and advancement of Richmond. In 1883 he gave largely toward the erection of the First M. E. Church. He was elected one of the trustees of the Home for Friendless Women in 1868, and served for nine years. In 1876 he erected a palatial home on his farm near Richmond, a model in all ways as a residence, and has lived there ever since, though his kindly face was a familiar sight about the factory and on the streets. It can be truthfully said of him that he died with a clean record; a man who never had an enemy, and whom all respected with a respect that was well earned. There are but two of his brothers who survive him.—Chicago Paper.

JEREMIAH FISHER (No. 77, page 72).

Jeremiah Fisher was born in the first brick house ever built in Kentucky. The quaint structure stands within three miles of Danville, in what was then Mercer County, but which is now Boyle. Adam [71—65], Barnett [page 521], and Stephen Fisher [90—65] were the founders of the Kentucky branch. They came from Virginia, and were very rich men for that day, owning nearly the whole of the territory comprising Boyle County. Their descendants have inherited in a direct line, with the exception of one family. Jeremiah was married, in the year 1804, to Mary Buckner Slaughter, a daughter of Gabriel Slaughter, who was afterwards Governor of Kentucky. Her training had been of the most judicious, and, together with her husband, she took an exalted position in the young State's best citizenship.

The children of Jeremiah and Mary Buckner Fisher were Gabriel, Sarah, Betsy Ann, James, Adam, Simeon, Susan, Mary, and Felix. Shortly after the birth of the youngest child, the death of the mother left a high and responsible charge to the surviving father. Nobly he fulfilled the trust. For thirty-six years he was spared to rear his family, which he did after the patriarchal manner of the good old Baptist Church. He was first in their hearts, and their respect for him bordered on reverence. He was a farmer by pursuit, and a philanthropist whose deeds of charity have never ceased to bear fruits even to this day. More than one tribute to his memory has been paid of late years by those who trace their present prosperity to the helping hand of this estimable and exceedingly modest citizen. He was rich in earthly possessions, and it was said of him that he did all the good it was practicable for his means to accomplish.

Spotlessly neat in his dress, and courtly in manner, his familiar figure was long and painfully missed in the church, at home, and in his accustomed haunts. He died full of days, and left his children the legacy of a well-spent life, and enough broad acres to give them each a competent beginning of the world. His body reposes in the family burying-ground at the old homestead, after the custom of the day when cemeteries were unknown, and where the song of birds is the only echo on the silent air.

COL. JAMES ADAM FISHER (347—100).

Colonel James Adam Fisher, second son of Jeremiah and Mary Buckner Fisher, was born at a time when the pioneer training of Kentucky's young men was eminently calculated to fit them for the exigencies of life; when sterling integrity and honest methods told of an ancestry hardy and true, and self-indulgence had no place in the domestic polity. And yet, upon this solid basis of aim and endeavor, there began to be grafted the graces of a progressive civilization; and the early years of the century boasted society circles of historic charm and beauty. The hardship of warfare, which had contested every inch of the Dark and Bloody Grounds, had given way to the arts of peace, and the young swell of the "thirties" was a conquest ardently to be desired by the future wives of the region. So Cupid began his reign, and "the old, old story ever new" was enacted by-and-by in the career of the young gallant.

It was when accompanying his "fair ladye" on the bridal procession of her elder sister that young James told his love. The guests, some twenty in number, were on horseback, paired two and two. The threatening sky warned those in the van to hasten to their first night's rendezvous. But our young lovers loitered along in the rear, forgetting all else but their own sunny horizon, till the storm broke and the rain fell in torrents. The ardent wooer, while not exactly enacting young Lochinvar, was impelled to clasp in his arms the then terrified maiden, and hold her on the palfrey while the lightnings played and the thunder crashed. Then and there were spoken the words that gave him his bride, the beautiful and dainty Martha Dunlap, whose belleship by right of high birth and personal attractions was exchanged for household gods of potent blessing through sixty years of married life. The wedding, which took place in 1834, was a function of unusual elegance, the vows being pledged across a round table decorated with the tall "stack cake," and the attendants and minister occupying the other spaces. Fifty years later the golden wedding of the couple was celebrated amid children, grandchildren, relatives, and friends, and no greater homage was laid at the feet of the bride of nineteen than was now offered by the gray-haired lover, whose exalted admiration and fond affection had never known a moment's wavering in all the time since the glamour-days of love's young dream.

Eight children were born to them, of whom Geo. D., Jere B., and Mattie F. survived to close the dying eyes of their father, who passed to the Home of Rewards on the night of February 22, 1894. The event occurred at Danville, where the greater part of his life had been spent. The vicissitudes of fortune had led him elsewhere from time to time, and prosperity crowned his honest efforts; but he died at the home of his birth and early manhood, and now sleeps beneath his native blue-grass.

We can not do better than close this brief sketch with some extracts from one of the many obituary notices published at the time of Colonel Fisher's decease:

"The funeral of Colonel James A. Fisher took place Monday morning from the family residence on Broadway, with a large concourse of friends and relatives in attendance. The passing away of this venerable citizen, who first saw the light in Danville eighty-three years ago, is suggestive of much that is useful to contemplate by his surviving loved ones. Honorable and upright throughout his long life, a spotless integrity has marked his citizenship and a noble fidelity his human obligations. In his family he was the embodiment of tenderness and patience. Gentle and courteous, there clung about him that old-school courtliness which belongs in a great measure to a past generation. He was a noble Christian gentleman, and had early learned the lesson that 'a froward tongue' is a weapon to be abjured. In every relation that binds heart to heart and mind to mind, he was a model to be imitated.

"Colonel Fisher was a member of the Presbyterian Church from early manhood. During the vicissitudes of a business career he spent some years in Missouri, in New Orleans, and at other lucrative points; but Danville was his favorite home, and his wish to die here was mercifully granted. His title of 'Colonel' was won in the militia service of his native State, when he commanded a regiment at Danville. His children have ever demonstrated the wisdom of his example and training, and to their loving care is left the comfort and solace of the aged widow."

James Clore was born in Madison County, East Virginia, near the Robinson River, January 22, 1794. He was the youngest of eleven children—eight sons and three daughters. All lived to be older than the average of man's life, except one son, who was killed in the War of 1812. One brother lived to the age of ninety-five, and a sister, ninety-seven. He moved to Oldham County, Kentucky, in 1819, settling in the immediate neighborhood of six of his brothers and two sisters who had preceded him, all owning large tracts of land. He married Sarah Kellar December 26, 1820. To them were born twelve children—eight sons and four daughters. All lived to be grown. At present (March 18, 1894) only six of their children are living—four boys and two girls. The writer of these lines is the oldest son living, sixty-seven years old; and Ann Garr, the mother of the author of this book, is the oldest one of the daughters living—seventy-one years old. Three of his sons died between the age of twenty and twenty-five years. He lived to see all the rest married and settled on farms of their own, which he furnished most of the money to buy, except for the youngest, a son who was yet single at his death.

James Clore was of fine stature—six feet one inch tall—dark hair, sandy beard, large features, and a man of good mind. He was firm in his convictions and positive in his family; a good husband, father, and neighbor, ever ready to distribute to the needy. A constant reader of the Bible, his greatest desire was to do the will of God as revealed to him through his written word. The lessons above all others that he strove to engraft in the hearts of his children were to be honest with each other and their fellow men. His wife was very small in stature, never weighing a hundred pounds, and could stand erect under his arm when held out at a right angle from his body. But she was big at heart, was loved by all who knew her, and respected for her good qualities. The writer is at a loss for words to express her goodness, but will say she was as perfect a model as a woman could reach as a wife, mother, neighbor, and Christian. She was the mediator between father and children, teaching her children to honor, love, and obey him. Often would she intercede in behalf of the children, but ever taught them to be submissive to the father's will. Before his death he saw a great evil growing in expensive burials; and to teach his children a lesson, he made a written request as to how he wished to be buried. This was as follows: His body was to be dressed with the suit that he was married in, which had been preserved for that purpose. The pants were of white cotton, which was homespun and woven by one of his sisters about the time he was twenty-one years old. His vest was home-made figured linen. A pure Irish linen sheet covered his body. His coffin was to be of poplar wood, without any paint or varnish, flat lid, no lining on the inside, and to be hauled to the graveyard (which was on the farm) in his two-horse farm wagon. He strove to live a strictly honest life, did a cash business, never bought either real or personal property except as he could pay for it in cash. He was the owner of thirty negroes at the time President Lincoln issued his proclamation freeing them, and was not heard to murmur, but felt that he was better off without them and clear of a great responsibility. He died August 29, 1872, aged seventy-eight years and seven months, his wife having died ten years before. He was buried as requested, all his living children being present, eight in number—five boys and three daughters. On the day following his burial, while his children were all together, three of whom lived in Indiana, his papers were examined, and they found his business so well arranged that, on the third day after his death (there being no debts), the whole estate, consisting of 365 acres of good farm land and the personal property, was all divided among the children by themselves, to the perfect satisfaction of all. Three of the brothers took the land, stock, and crops at a fixed value. Household goods were divided as each one wished, and the children separated as loving brothers and sisters, and have ever been such, for which God is to be thanked, and for our having such a father and mother as we had.

JOHN CLORE [1071—156].

James Clore was born in Madison County, Virginia, and was the son of John Clore, who married Margaret Blankenbaker, whose mother, Elizabeth Barbara Gaar, was two years old when she landed at Philadelphia, September 26, 1732, with her father, Andreas Gar. James Clore moved to Kentucky, and settled in Oldham County, near Harrod's Creek Church, of which all of his brothers, sisters, and future wife were members. He also united with them, and was baptized by Rev. Benjamin Allen, then pastor of the church. He lived to see all of his children confess Christ in the same church. Uncle Joel Clore was brought home from camp and died, 1812.

ISSUED DURING THE PROGRESS OF THIS WORK.

KOKOMO, IND., Sept. 23, 1888.

MRS ELLEN ABBOTT—I am now compiling a genealogy of the Gaar and Clove families in America, and would like you to send me your family record. I have now nearly 1,600 names in my book, and hope to print it next year. Hoping to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

To the Descendants of Andreas Gar in America, greeting:

I am now compiling a genealogy of the descendants of John Gar, of Frankenhofen, Bavaria, or more particularly his son Andreas, who emigrated to America in the year 1732.

In this I am but continuing a work commenced by my father more than forty years ago. This labor of love and pride has become more interesting to me since my visit last February to Mittlefranken, Bavaria, the home of the Gar family for more than five hundred years.

Making Dinkelsbuehl my headquarters, I also visited Frankenhofen, where I saw the house in which Andreas Gar was born, also the record of his birth in the Lutheran Church books, also the record of his father's death, "an humble and devout man."

At Illenschwang, where Andreas Gar lived from the time of his marriage until he emigrated to America. I saw the house in which he was married and the church he attended. On the walls of this church are several old pictures of the Apostles. On the back of one of these pictures is the name of Andreas Gar, he having given it to the church.

In the church records here I found recorded the marriage of Andreas Gar, the birth of his twelve children, and the death of seven of them. But the most important discovery here was the record of two letters, one from Andreas Gar, the other from his son John Adam, both written to the Lutheran minister in Illenschwang, who copied them into the church records, to be read by all interested. These long letters, written in Germantown, Pennsylvania, give a complete and graphic description of their journey and voyage from the time of their departure from Illenschwang, April 26, 1732, to the time of their landing at Philadelphia, September 26, 1732.

It was my good fortune to meet Leonard Gaar, burgomaster of Sinnbronn, aged 74, and a lineal descendant of John Gar, father of Andreas. He remembered that, when a child, he had read a letter written by Andreas Gar to his people in Bavaria, the end lines of which were:

*"Wenn ich weiter bei euch waer",
Waer' mir mein herz nicht so schwer."*

He gave me a true copy of the "Stamwappen," or family crest, "presented to the Gar family, of Frankenhofen, in the year 1519, by the Emperor Charles the Fifth for their true and loyal services."

Accompanying this is a complete "description," explaining its symbols and giving the volume and page where it may be found recorded.

My brother, Dr. James O. Garr, of Kokomo, Indiana, has the two original German letters of recommendation brought to this country by Andreas Gar in 1732.

These and many other important discoveries entitle us to feel proud of our family as being one of the oldest and most honorable in America.

Up to this date—November 8, 1889—I have 4,772 names, and ask your assistance toward making the record correct and complete. It is my intention to have the book printed as soon as it shall have assumed a reasonable degree of completeness. It will contain not only names and dates, but many old, interesting, and important letters, records, etc., all of which will be printed in full, said record extending over a period of 369 years. The price of the book will be within the cost of printing, postage, and other actual cash expenses incurred in securing names, data, etc.

The Gars of Franconia were converts of Martin Luther, and thereafter for over three hundred years remained staunch and faithful members of the Lutheran Church. I am especially anxious to receive letters from the old people. Put on your "thinking cap" and try to remember those who were old when you were young. Then, if your hand is not steady enough, get one of your children or grandchildren to put your memories on paper—all the names, dates, and addresses of the grandmothers, grandfathers, uncles, and aunts, where and when they were born, when and where did they die, who and where are their children—so that I may write to them. I travel a great deal, and if I ever come near your home I shall surely visit you.

I have examined the family records in a hundred different Bibles, and have not found one that was correct and complete. Some of the mistakes were awkward, to say the least. Examine yours carefully. Only the names of Garrs, or their blood descendants, or those who have married blood descendants, will be printed in the book.

The descendants of Andreas Gar have mostly lived in Culpeper, Madison, and Orange Counties, Virginia; Boyle, Mercer, Trimble, Oldham, and Jefferson Counties, Kentucky; Johnson, Wayne, and Howard Counties in Indiana.

By the aid of the inclosed card you can easily ascertain the generation of your own family.

Hoping this may interest you, and that you will promptly return to me the accompanying sheet, properly and carefully filled out, together with any other information you may be kind enough to furnish me,

I am, very sincerely,

JOHN C. GARR.

KOKOMO, INDIANA, U. S. A., November, 1890.

To the Descendants of Andreas Gar in America, greeting:

You have received a copy of my printed letter of November, 1888, which announced the purport and purpose of my great undertaking. I wish through this letter to express my most grateful acknowledgments for the generous assistance and kindly interest expressed by those to whom my previous letters were addressed. Also to answer the many kind inquiries as to the progress of my work. I now have 9,640 names, comprising 2,418 families. I have the present postoffice address of 1,400 families. I sailed from New York January 21, 1888, for Liverpool, thence to London, Rotterdam, Cologne, Wurtzburg, Ansbach, Dinkelsbuehl, etc. Returning by London and Liverpool, arrived in Boston April 15, 1888. I intended taking another trip to Germany in 1889, but important business engagements prevented. It is my intention to go again to Germany at an early date. I want to publish the book just as soon as it shall have attained a reasonable degree of completeness. If you will just consider that this is the first and only history of our family to be compiled, that I have written nearly three thousand letters, and have to wait an average of three months for answers to them; that these families live in 24 different States; that I am pursuing this work at my own individual expense (and I have to work hard for my money too); that extensive research in old Bible, church, and court records requires time and expense—think of all this, then content yourself in one small part of the patience required of me, and I am sure you will agree with me that no undue haste should be used, but that every effort should be made to make the book as correct and complete as possible. I am making every effort in my power, and if all my letters were answered promptly, the work would be soon finished. As to my motive, it is simply to have the honor of writ-ting our family history. Our family is one of the oldest and most honorable in America. Three hundred and seventy-one years ago they received their family crest from Emperor Charles the Fifth, then the most powerful monarch of Europe, who bestowed upon them this special mark of his favor for "their true and loyal services," they being "an old and very good family." Equally great was their honor in being co-laborers with Martin Luther in the great religious Reformation, and this too at a time when they had to fight for their religion, when to be a Christian required both fortitude and courage. In order to escape the bitter persecution waged against them by the Bishop of Salzburg, Andreas Gar, at the head of 300 Palatines, left Illenschwang in 1732 for America and settled in what is now Madison Co., Va., where they were members of the first German Lutheran Church in America, founded under the auspices of "Good Queen Aune," with its grand pipe organ from Germany, and its solid silver communion service from England. I played on the old organ last summer. It is one of the sweetest-toned instruments I ever heard, and is used to this day at the regular services, as is also the old silver communion service. The first generations in America were men of peace, busily engaged in making homes for themselves and their posterity, educating their children and building up the great Christian Church, for they brought the minister and schoolmaster with them from Germany. Yet were they brave, and many of them were good soldiers in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, and the Mexican War. In 1861 to 1865 this family, now scattered to nearly every State in the Union, still retained the courage to fight for what they thought was right; hence the sad spectacle of nearly 200 persons of the same great family, about equally divided, fighting against each other according to the State in which they happened to be living when the war broke out. The honor of compiling the history and genealogy of this our family furnishes the motive for my present work, and will, I trust, be sufficient to enlist your kind sympathy, interest, and assistance. I am not searching for a fortune, although 4,000 of the descendants of Andreas Gar are heirs to the Wilhoit fortune, 2,000 are heirs to the Fisher fortune, while 1,000 are heirs to both fortunes. All inquiries regarding the Fisher fortune may be addressed to Miss Mattie L. Fisher, Danville, Ky. I know of no effort being made to recover the Wilhoit fortune. I have nearly a complete record of the Wilhoit family in America from 1735 to 1870, which I received from my uncle, Dr. Lewis C. Garr, of Independence, Kan. It has been of great assistance to me in my present work, as there have been more than 100 intermarriages between the Garrs and Wilhoits in the last 150 years. In a few weeks I shall commence copying all the names into a new book, and hope this to be the last revision before the final revision for the printer. My book contains the names of 500 persons now living, whose aggregate age is 35,000 years, or an average of "three score and ten." Remember, that in writing to me you place yourself under no obligation to buy a book, but that it is I who will be obliged to you for the information. The price will not be more than $5.00, and should a large number be taken, it would be considerably less. It will be printed on finest tinted paper, gold edges and substantial leather binding. I will be well satisfied to dispose of enough books to pay for the cost of printing. The honor of the work is all that I ask or expect for my three years of labor.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN C. GARR.

But the most important discovery here was the record of two letters, one from Andreas Gar, the other from his son John Adam Gaar, both written to the Lutheran minister in Illenschwang, who copied them into the church records, to be read by all interested.

These long letters, written in Germantown, Penn., give a complete and graphic description of their journey and voyage from the time of their departure from Illenschwang, April 26, 1732, to the time of their landing in Philadelphia September 26, 1732, exactly five months afterwards.

They sailed from Rotterdam on the ship Loyal Judith, and "after a long, trying, and dangerous voyage God changed the wind so we arrived safely in Philadelphia, and descending from the ship we thanked our dear Lord that he brought us all safe and sound to this beloved land." (The family immediately settled in Germantown, Penn., but soon afterwards moved to what is now Madison Co., Va.) It was my good fortune to meet Leonard Gaar, Burgomaster of Sinnbronn, aged 74 (since deceased), and a lineal descendant of John Gar, father of Andreas. He remembered that when a child he had read a letter, written by Andreas Gar, to his people in Bavaria, the end lines of which were:

*"Wenn ich weiter bei euch waer',
Waer' mir mein herz nicht so schwer."*

(If I could but be with you now,
My heart would not be so heavy.)

He gave me a true copy of the "Stamwappen," or family crest, "presented to the Gar family of Frankenhofen in the year 1519 by Emperor Charles V., for their true and loyal services."

Accompanying this is a complete "description," explaining its symbols and giving the volume and page where it may be found recorded.

Returning via London and Liverpool I arrived in Boston April 15, 1888. Have not since been to Germany, but hope to go again soon.

My brother, Dr. Jas. O. Garr, of Kokomo, Ind., has the two original German letters of recommendation, brought to this country by Andreas Gar in 1732.

As to my motive in this work, it is simply to have the honor of writing our family history. Our family is one of the oldest and most honorable in America. Three hundred and seventy-three years ago they received their family crest from the most powerful monarch of Europe, who bestowed on them this special mark of his favour for "their true and loyal services," they being "an old and very good family." Just think, they were an old family 373 years ago.

I have a nearly complete record of the Wilhoit family in America from 1735 to 1870, which I received from my uncle, Dr. Lewis C. Garr, of Independence, Kansas. It has been a great assistance to me in my present work, as there have been more than 100 intermarriages between the Garrs and Wilhoits in the last 150 years. The Gars of Franconia were converts of Martin Luther, and thereafter for over 300 years remained staunch and faithful members of the Lutheran Church. My book contains the names of 500 persons, now living, whose aggregate age is 35,000 years, or an average of "three score and ten." I am especially anxious to receive letters from these old people. Put on your "thinking cap," try to think of those who were old when you were young; then, if your hand is not steady, get one of your children or grandchildren to put your memories on paper and send them to me.

I travel a great deal, and should I ever come near your home I shall surely visit you. I have examined the family records in a hundred different Bibles and never found one that was correct and complete. Some of the mistakes were awkward, to say the least. Examine yours carefullv. Only the names of Garrs, or their blood-descendants will be printed in the book. If you don't understand just how it includes you, I will be glad to explain to you. I am not bashful about asking questions, but I will be just as willing and glad to answer your questions if I can.

Hoping this may interest you, and that you will promptly return to me the accompanying sheet, properly and carefully filled out, together with any other information you may be kind enough to furnish me,

I am very sincerely,

JOHN C. GARR.

POSTSCRIPT.

TO THE WILHOIT HEIRS.

I am a Wilhoit heir, through Margaret Wilhoit (see card), daughter of John Wilhoit, one of the four brothers (John, Adam, Tobias, and Michael) who settled in Madison County, Va., about 1735, neighbors to the Garrs, Clores, Crislors, Fishers, Utzs, Carpenters, Criglers, Weavers, Blankenbakers, Yagers, etc.

On account of the many intermarriages, my book will virtually be a history of all these families. I have received some foolish anonymous letters, accusing me of trying to secure the fortune for myself. If the fortune really exists, it would require years of time and thousands of dollars to secure it. Why should I spend my hard earnings hunting up a fortune for a family already worth $100,000,000, especially as the law does not authorize me to make any such search, and I could not, by law, recover anything for my trouble and expenses. If the fortune is ever found, no matter by whom, the fact would be published far and wide in every newspaper in the United States. Lawyers would search every village and town for heirs. Under no circumstances could any person secure more than their share. I may some day arrange to make a search for the fortune, but it will not be until after I have finished my present work.

TO THE FISHER HEIRS.

I am not an heir to the Fisher fortune, but 2,000 of the Fisher heirs are blood decendants of Andreas Gar, and so their names will be included in my book. Ludwig (Lewis) Fisher, Sr., was, with Deobold Chrystler and Zachary Blankenbaker, witness to the will of Lorenz Gaar (see card), dated at Bromfield Parish, Culpeper County, Va., October 29, 1753. I think that Lewis Fisher and Lorenz Gaar married sisters (see card). Lewis Fisher's sons, Adam and Stephen, married daughters of John Adam Gaar, who was a brother to Lorenz and son of Andreas (see card) Lewis's son Barnett married Eve Wilhoit, sister to Margaret (see card).

Thus you can easily see how the book will be a history of the Wilhoit and Fisher families as well as the Garr family.

They were neighbors, and belonged to the same church. There have been over 200 marriages between these families during the past 150 years.

LETTERS.

[Translated from the German.]

SINNBRONN, BAVARIA, 1888-9.
Respected Cousin—Your dear letter received which gave me great pleasure; also that you lay such great worth on the family crest as myself. It will be a great pleasure for us to receive the picture of your highly respected mother. I am now on the way to take pictures of mine. My sister (age 86) will be delighted to receive a visit from you on the eve of her life.

March 25, 1889. Dear Nephew—Your letter received in best health, only the arms begin to weaken. I think that Andreas Gar never would have given such a wealth to his family as long as he lived in Germany. It is astonishing how the family has prospered. There you must say "The Lord took him to a foreign country and blessed his people." Andreas Gar's brother John married at Weiltingen. It is him I am descended from. I was born Jan. 2, 1814. I will tell you a little more about the weather. The winter was quite mild until Feb. Then it commenced storming and snowing, but now the unwelcome guests disappear again. We live in a beautiful country in the middle zone. Anyhow the Mittle-franken is the best in Bavaria, and all settled by Lutherans. Our correspondence will probably come to an end before long, because I am getting very old. My years are perhaps among the last ones. I never was sick or took any medicine.

April 19, 1889. To my dearest friends together—I hope you will receive these few lines accompanied by my picture, in the same good health as you were when you left us. I received your letter and the picture of your respected mother. I appreciate it very much that my letters and picture will reach America. Who would ever thought this, that an old relation would be revived. I can hardly find words to express the pleasure which you, dear nephew, have given us, and that you were able to find the cue from which our family came. Every thoughtful man must be pleased when he finds out that the people respect their ancestors and honor them. What would be the past to the future if they had no interest in one another. I have impressed on the mind to remember our family as I do. I hope we will shake hands this year once more, then God our Father will have His hand over you in your long travels.

(Age 76)

Yours respectfully,

LEONARD GAAR.

[Translated from the German.]

ANSBACH, BAVARIA, February 17, 1890.
Mr. John C. Garr—The correspondence which you had with my good father, Leonard Garr. Now also my father conceived a great attachment for you. It becomes my duty, filled with grief as I am, to communicate you that my father, the 9th of January morning, 7 o'clock, after three days sickness, died. I found in your letters that you thought to visit my father's sister, but also she is gone since last autumn. All your letters and pictures I have received, and I only wish that you will the friendly relation transfer to me since my father's death. I live at Ansbach, and served three years in the Uhlan regiment. My family is six, three boys and three girls, which are all, thank God, hearty and intelligent. My good mother sends you her best regards. Also I and all my family.

(Age 40)

Yours truly,

FREDERICK GAAR.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Dec. 6, 1888.
Dear Cousin—I am sorry to have kept you waiting so long, but it has been quite a trial to get the different members of the family to respond. Come over and see us. I want to talk to you. There are plenty of young ladies over here, pretty too. I think we could entertain you in the old Garr style. Wishing you success in your great undertaking.

(Age 76)

I remain yours truly.

JOSEPH W. GARR [926--143].

SUTTER CITY, CAL., Oct. 29, 1888.

Dear Cousin—I hope you will excuse my long delay. I remember your father, Cousin Wesley, well, and all your grandfather's family, especially your aunts, Mary and Susan. They were young ladies when I visited at Uncle Ben's. I hope you will have good luck with your book. I am very anxious to get one of them. I appreciate your work. I always was proud of my name, and more now than ever. I have always promised myself a visit to the old home in Kentucky, but as I am getting old, and health not very good, I suppose I will have to give it up. I waited for my children to get old enough to leave at home, and now my baby has left me. He is teaching school 20 miles from here, but he has to come home every Friday night to see his mother. You have a pressing invitation to visit us, and that very soon.

Affectionately your cousin,

(Age 59)

MARY A. E. (GARR) BRITTAN [2887—271].

Daughter of Mark Finks Garr.

NAPA CITY, CAL., Sept. 11, 1889.

Dear Cousin—It was not for the want of pride or interest in your undertaking that I have not written to you before this, but when your letter came I was sick in bed, and have been very slow recovering. Send to my address a copy of your book when it is published. I shall prize it highly. If you can possibly come to this coast in your travels, you will meet with a hearty welcome among your relatives here. Accept my best wishes for the success of your laudable undertaking. There is nothing that holds us up so much as family pride.

(Age 39)

Respectfully yours,

HAZZIE (GARR) BUTLER [8126—271].

ARKANSAS CITY, KAN., Nov. 17, 1888.

Dear Cousin—You will please pardon me for being so derelict in answering your request. I am glad to know that you are preparing a history of the Garr family, and shall be delighted to at least get one copy from you when you get it in print. I should be glad for you to call and see me in your wanderings. My kinsmen in your country I should be glad to see: Cousins William Garr, Henry Smith, Rob Smith, William Keller, etc.

(Age 65)

Your cousin,

NEWTON H. GARR [930—143].

DOVER, MO., Nov. 28, 1888.

Mr. John C. Garr—I will give you a record of my own family which is quite small. Write to my uncle Howard Garr, Madison C. H., Va. He is living on his grandfather Wilhoit's home-place, which adjoins my grandfather Abram Gaar's old home-place. In Virginia they spell their name Gaar, but, like the age we live in, it was modernized when it came West. I presume you are a relative; but if you can trace it back and tell how near or how far, it is more than we can do.

We surely do want a book, and not only one, but three—one for each of our children. I can conceive of no greater pleasure than to be permitted to read the genealogy of the Garr family. Will be glad to have you visit us at any time. Hoping you may succeed in your great undertaking.

(Age 64)

Yours truly,

MR. and MRS. GEO. W. GARR [1286—173].

MORGANFIELD, KY., June 11, 1888.

Dear Cousin—Yours of late date at hand. Will fill out my family record. My father Hiram Garr, born in Virginia, moved here 1876. I am a cripple in my right hand from a gun shot wound received in the "Reb" army under John H. Morgan.

(Age 46)

Your cousin,

THOMAS J. GARR [3038—281].

WORTHINGTON, KY., April, 1890.

Friend—I received your letter some time ago, but do not think I take no interest in the noble task you have undertaken. You will see I am a very old lady, and not being well, I could not write. I will take pleasure in giving any information I can.

(Age 80)

Lovingly yours,

ROSETTA SNYDER [3557—151].

(Died May 22, 1892.)

MILLVILLE, UTAH, January 23, 1893.

Mr. John C. Garr—Was very much pleased to hear from you and to know that you were still searching for the genealogies of our family, and to make them as accurate as possible. I read with much interest the prospectus of your work, and I hasten the time when I can have a book with the genealogy of my family. It is, when I contemplate, one of the greatest books of the 19th century. I wish you to remember that I wish one of the first copies of the book when printed, and will hail it as one of the greatest books of the age.

I am, yours as ever,

(Age 60)

ABEL WEAVER GARR [2787—260].

DANVILLE, KY., July 3, 1890.

John C. Garr—Yours of the 26th received, and much appreciated for its kind words and great thoughtfulness. I am the daughter of Col. James H. Fisher. You can easily find me on the "tree" which I send you to-day and ask you to accept from "a cousin." If there is anything more I can do for you, don't hesitate to ask it.

Yours respectfully,

MISS MATTIE L. FISHER [1504—100].

BURGIN, KY., 1890.

Dear Sir—Your letters were received some days ago. I will do all I can to help you. I take much pride in my ancestry. My grandparents, George Cook, born 1777, Jemima Wilhoit, born 1779, married in Virginia November 3, 1804, and at once moved to Kentucky—now Boyle County. Strother Cook, my father, born 1809, educated at Danville, ordained to the ministry 1834. I was born in 1851, ordained to the ministry 1883; went as missionary to the Yoruba country, west coast of Africa; remained two years. Expect to return to the same field some time this year. Truly yours,

STROTHER MOSES COOK [3363—147].

EDEN, KY., November 21, 1890.

Dear Cousin John—I am glad to hear from you. I could not get all the dates. If you wish me to get all the dates, let me know, and I will attend to it. Johnnie, write me a long letter. You have traveled so much that you are a history within yourself. Give my love to all. Be sure and come to see us. Again love to all. Farewell.

Your cousin,

(Age 82)

LOUISA (CLORE) WILLIAMSON [1023—88].

(Died March 31, 1892.)

MIDWAY, MISS., April 23, 1890.

Mr. John C. Garr—I am very glad to have your communication, and very grateful for the list of my grandfather, George Crisler's family. I supposed he lived in Madison County, Va., as both his and Uncle Absalom's wills are recorded there. My father, Julius, married in Virginia and went to Elbert County, Ga., where all his children were born. I, being the only survivor, am in my seventy-fourth year. My father married a sister of Felix Garr's wife. If I live until you complete your book, I will be glad to get one. I am very respectfully,

JOSEPH CRISLER [531—115].

(Died October, 9, 1891.)

WYMORE, NEB., March 28, 1890.

John C. Garr—When I received your letter it surprised me, and I was so glad to have the record of my father's family. He was a Lutheran minister. I feel very much interested; and when your book is out I want one for my children, and if I were able I would take five—one for each child. I consider that it would be next to the Bible in my family. Will be glad to help you in any way I can.

(Age 38) Respectfully yours, EMILY (CRIGLER) GILBY [2458—242].

JAMESTOWN, KY., May 3, 1889.

Dear Cousin—I am delighted with the discovery you have made of our family ancestry. I am truly in hope you may be successful in your work, as I am anxious to see it. I also feel proud of our family, it being one of the oldest and most honorable in America.

Your cousin.

(Age 56)

MARY (GARR) MEADOWS [305—96].

WASHINGTON, VA., February 1, 1890.

Dear Cousin Garr—Tradition says my great-grandfather Miller was a brave soldier under Frederic the Great. For rashness (could not take an insult) knocked an officer down and had to leave his country. His son, my grandfather, died at Norfolk, Va., in the war of 1812. We have his sword, feather, etc. My father is the only one living of ten children. Do not think from our long silence that we take no interest in your work. On the contrary, we prize any information connected with our ancestors. My brother, O. D. Miller, would like to have the picture of so energetic a cousin, who could undertake such a stupendous work. Two sisters are at home now. You ought to have seen the consternation on their countenances when I told them I had sent you their ages. They said they did not want it printed. I told them they must be like Bulwer, reckon age by events, and not by years. Wishing you success with your book. Of course we will get one.

Your cousin,

MISS GERTRUDE MILLER [3773—158].

HOLDEN, UTAH, January 21, 1889.

Dear Friend—I can assure you that I am pleased to be able to assist you in so grand a work. You can well be proud of the labor you have undertaken. I do not know as I can assist you, only in purchasing one of your books, which I desire to have as soon as they are ready. Pleased to hear from you and to know that the ennobling work you have undertaken is progressing, which will cause your name to be had in honorable remembrance throughout future generations.

(Age 40) Wishing you success, GEO. W. BADGER [7671—431].

RILEY, KAN., April 24, 1890.

Dear Sir—I certainly owe you an apology for so long neglecting to send the answers you so kindly requested. Please allow me to extend to you my appreciation of a nature which enables you to engage in so difficult a task, unselfishly and untiring. Your work is a good one, and I am much pleased to know the old "Gar" blood is my own life's fluid. With wishes for the success of your undertaking, I am

Respectfully,

BENJ. F. MORGAN, M. D. [3900—330].

EDGERTON, MO., July 31, 1889.

Dear Sir—While in Kentucky a short time since, I learned you were working up the genealogy of the Garr family. I am only anxious that it should be done, and will give you any assistance in my power. I am the son of John S. and Nancy Duke. Mother was the daughter of Frederic and Dina Yager. Dina Yager was Dina Garr, born 1780; married Frederic Yager in 1799. I shall take great pleasure in giving you all the assistance I can.

(Age 59)

THOS. J. DOKE [2999—278].

COVINGTON, KY., May 4, 1890.

Dear Sir and Friend—I am truly delighted to hear from you. I am the second son of Benj. Garr House. Would be very glad to hear from you or see you at any time. I would like to see the book and to have one of them. Don't think me one of the kind who answer six months after date. I will try and help you all I can. My mother lives with me and is seventy-four years old.

Truly yours,

CHARLES W. HOUSE [3023—280].

THOMSON, ILL., November 11, 1890.

Mr. J. C. Garr: Dear Sir and Relative—It is with pleasure that I send you my family record. I think you have a good work, and all the Gaars should help you make it a success. Then we can be proud to have a copy in our families. Did not know I had so many relatives. Stop and see us. You will always find the latch-string out for the Gaars.

(Age 44)

JOHN ANDREW GAAR [2876—270].

SYCAMORE, IND., September 27, 1888.

Cousin John—I send you all of my family's names, and am glad you have undertaken to write the history of our family. I hope you will make a success of it.

(Age 44)

ABRAM GARR [3087—283].

HEBRON, KY., February 11, 1890.

Dear Sir—I would be glad to have you come and see us. I wish you success with your book, and I want one of them. I will be glad to give you any information I can.

Very respectfully,
WILLIAM A. ROUSE [1163—164].
(Age 77)

MORTONSVILLE, KY., September 16, 1890.

Mr. J. C. Garr: Dear Sir—I received your note and have endeavored to comply with your request. Any further communication will be promptly answered, and hope you success in your undertaking.

(Age 35) ROBERT L. WILHOIT, M. D. [10028—323].

MOULTON, IOWA, December 15, 1890.

Dear Cousin—I have answered the question you asked, and am glad of the chance to help you, and I will gladly answer any question in my power, for I want one of the books as soon as they are finished.

(Age 72) ELIAS A. GARR [952 —145].

INDEPENDENCE, KAS., December 25, 1888.

Dear Nephew—Christmas Gift. Your letter received. I send you mine and my children's family records. If there should be anything more you may need or want any information about, let me know, and if within my power, I will assist you freely.

Your uncle, LEWIS C. GARR, M. D. [907—141].

HARRISONVILLE, MO., February 28, 1891.

Mr. John C. Garr—Until a little more than a year ago, I, who am a descendant of the Gar family, was a stranger to the name. If I had ever learned the name, even in history, it had long since been forgotten.

I have often regretted that the records of both the name and deeds of my ancestors were a "sealed book" to me—that beyond my grandparent's names I absolutely knew nothing. I am as much Garr as Fisher, and yet I had never met with a single one of the name, nor heard of the family. It would afford me great pleasure to know you personally and to have you meet with my brother, W. I. Fisher, of Nevada, Mo. He is the handsomest kin you have, and has two lovely daughters.

March 25. Yours of 19th, with all sorts of information received and enjoyed much. Especially am I glad to find in you such a good-looking cousin. In due time will send you the photos of some "pretty girls," with whom you will be proud to claim kinship unless I am much mistaken. My two brothers were native Missourians. The older one, Richard, left the academy in Dover in the beginning of the "late unpleasantness" in 1861, joined the rebel army. He was then only 16 years old; was in Missouri's first hard-fought battle at Springfield, "where Lyon bit the dust, and Seigel ran away." The younger one—Wm. J.—joined him in the summer of '62, being then only 15 years old, and the two boy soldiers served valiantly side by side on to the close of the war in every battle fought for the ill-fated Rebellion by Colonel Shanks' famous regiment under General Jo Shelby's command. The fall and winter of '64, brother Richard spent in Gratiot Street Prison, St. Louis, and in the Alton, Ill., Prison; was exchanged in the spring of '65, and walked 500 miles to join his command, just in time to surrender with them. This was a hard blow to him, and his stay at home, with its changed surroundings, was brief. He returned to Texas and Louisiana, and then to Belize, British Honduras, where he fell a victim to yellow fever, September 5, 1869. He was so generous and brave, and everything that makes up a noble manhood, and yet so appreciative and tender and companionable, that it well-nigh broke our hearts to give him up in the prime of life. He was our star of hope, the pride of the family; but for nearly twenty-two years the night dews have wept in our stead upon his far-off grave, and the autumn winds breathed above it the wail of sad hearts.

Sincerely your cousin,
(Age 51) BETTIE (FISHER) LISLE [1782—198].
(Died Feb. 21, 1894.)

HIAWATHA, KAN., February 22, 1894.

Cousin John—Let us know when the books are finished; we want five or six.

Your cousin,
MISS FANNIE INGELS [7849—264].

BARGERSVILLE, IND., July 1, 1889.

My Dear Nephew—I was both gladdened and surprised by the reception of your letter; surprised because I had not learned of your return from across the sea, and partly surprised that you had time or thought for your dear old aunt in your exciting career. Your travels surely were interesting, and I know you enjoyed it from your very heart; scenes and recollections of your forefathers made it thrice dear to you.

You could still see the footprints of long ago, and transfer them to thought and memory. It was no glittering fiction on the stage, but plain, truthful reality. Come home to mother often, 'tis your visits that lengthen her days. Your mother is an exception. Would to God I could be like her, so patient, so gentle, and loving, all her sorrows are hid beneath a calm surface. I know she longs to see her children settled down in life before she leaves them.

You have seen much of the world and doubtless have learned much. Are you not almost ready to come home to mother and all the dear ones? Johnnie, remember that your dear old afflicted aunt is ever glad to hear from the children of her dear brothers and sisters. 'Tis sweet to know I am remembered. Write to me.

And now I will leave you to the care and keeping of one who I trust will guide, guard, and bless you,

Your affectionate aunt,

SARAH (CLORE) DAVIS [1072—156].

Died Feb. 18, 1894.)

(Age 64)

PEWEE VALLEY, KY., June 25, 1892.

My Dear Mr. Garr—I wish I had had in earlier life a small portion of the zeal in acquiring a knowledge of my ancestry which you have so eminently. I could then have had the gratification of giving you more of the information you ask of me, and possibly pleasing events to recall of some of them. After Grandpa Hickman married Mrs. Elizabeth Abbott (daughter of Rosannah [Gaar] Dickens, who was daughter of John Adam Gaar, son of Andreas), I went to visit at their farm near Frankfort, Ky., and found her a very bright, cheerful woman, cordial and kind in manner, and very sweet and prepossessing in person. Every one indeed liked her very much. I would be glad to aid you in any way that I can. My recollections extend very far back, as I will be 92 years old if I live to the 23d of July, 1892, which I hope to do, having perfect health at present, and indeed most of my long life.

Very truly yours,

MARTHA ESTILL.

(Age 92)

ATLANTA, GA., June 25, 1892.

Dear Cousin—Your letter has furnished information that I have long desired to know. I truly appreciate the effort you are so nobly and I hope successfully making in what you have so wisely undertaken, and I assure you that any information I can give to make your burden lighter will give me much pleasure. My father, Michael Daniel Gaar, born in 1801, was the son of John Adam Gaar, from Elbert County, Ga. My grandfather had two brothers, George and Wilhelm.

There is Benjamin Gaar living near Atlanta, a son of Russell Gaar, a cousin of my father's. Russell Gaar died since the war, was a very fine looking man. I think the brothers of Benjamin live in Louisiana.

My father was a Baptist minister for thirty years. He represented Butts County, Ga., in the legislature, was also sheriff of Butts County, and also sheriff of Pike County. He was devoted to the Union, and prayed for its preservation, although he had two sons in the Confederate army. His sons were believers in a permanent union of the States, yet their common interests and surroundings generally demanded the course which they pursued (quite reluctantly).

I think we will take as many as three of your books. I would appreciate it as a great treasure. Hoping that God will bless you in the noble work you have undertaken, I will look forward with pleasure to its accomplishment.

Your cousin,

THOMAS A. GARR [1249—171].

HOKE'S BLUFF, ALA., July 25, 1892.

Mr. John C. Garr—I hope you will have success in your great work, and if you live to complete it, I want one of the books, as I would consider it next to the Bible in my family.

Your cousin,

MARY (CRISLER) BENTLEY [2133—222].

Mr. John C. Garr—You have my family record all right.

Dear Sir—I am a son of Abram Gaar, who was a son of Michael Gaar. My father was born June 7, 1776 and married Tabitha Wilhoit, April 14, 1796. I was born March 9, 1812.
 Yours sincerely,

 (Died April 21, 1893.)

RICHMOND, IND., January 6, 1891.
Mr. J. C. Garr—I received your welcome letter in due time. Contents noted. Am glad to hear you are still working on the Garr history. I want about six copies. Hoping to hear from you.
 Yours truly,
 ABRAM GAAR [2774—258].
 (Died Feb. 10, 1894.)

THOMSON, ILL., December 7, 1890.
Dear Cousin—Your letter received. I am glad you are getting along so well with your book, for it is a herculean task that not one man in a thousand would dare undertake. Now, if I can help you in any way, command me. I have read and re-read your mother's letters (and not without tears). Oh, how I would like to take her by the hand and look into her eyes, for I believe I should find in her a congenial spirit. I learn to live, and I can read in her letters a good woman, the breathings of a pure mother's heart, and I don't see how a son could be anything else but a good boy with such a good mother.
 Your cousin,
 (Age 46) MELISSA (GAAR) DYSON [2875—135].

INDEPENDENCE, KAS., March 18, 1890.
Sir—After my respects to you, I have no additional information to give you only when you get your book complete, send me a card. I want one.
 (Age 69) ALBERT F. UTZ [1168—165].

CONSTANCE, KY., November 7, 1890.
Cousin Garr—Please find enclosed papers you sent me to fill out. I will take a book. My father Henry Souther was at the battle of New Orleans, and walked all the way from there home, 1000 miles.
 (Age 69) WILLIAM SOUTHER [778—129].

SIoux CITY, IA, December, 5, 1890.
Dear Cousin—I was delighted to receive your very interesting communication. Will be glad when your book is finished so I can purchase one.

My grandmother was Rosey (Gaar) Ingels, and I will never forget how I enjoyed waiting on her, and how we all loved her. My husband's grandfather was a French nobleman, and was thrice decorated on the battle-field by Napoleon.

Of course he is very proud of his ancestors, and I hope the time is not far distant when I will be able by your kind perseverance to show him what a distinguished family he had the honor of uniting with. Your cousin, (Age 32) MARY (INGELS) DEGUIBERT [7821—437].

DANVILLE, KY., September 19, 1892.
Dear Cousin—I have filled out some blanks which I hope will be satisfactory. Brother Strother and myself will doubtless take a book each. We all extend you a warm and earnest invitation to make us a visit at your earliest convenience. Will be delighted to see you. Mother, while quite aged (86), is very well, and retains her mental faculties very surprisingly. Hoping you great success in your enterprise.
 Your cousin,

Dear Cousin—Glad to hear from you, and wish you success in your undertaking. Mark me down for one of your books when finished. There ere eleven children in father's family, seven boys and four girls. The baby is forty-nine years old and the oldest 72. All are living. JACKSON LAMB [2798—262].

Dear Cousin—You said that I should see you again, and I hope to see you and your book; but I find every year that passes takes some of my strength and vitality, and reminds me that I am passing away. But I do not complain, for I realize that this is not my abiding place. I wish you successs in your great undertaking. Remember that Aunt Betsy's latch-string is always out.

My Dear Kinsman—Your last letter was misplaced; found it to-day under the old clock. I am anxious for one of your books, regardless of price; am willing to reap a great harvest in the demand for your great work. I am proud of my great ancestors, and am anxious to know their true history.

Dear Sir and Relative—I inclose you the record of my family. Allow me to express my admiration of a man who has undertaken so great a work for the benefit of his kindred. Your cousin,

JOHN WESLEY GARR [958—146].

GRAIN VALLEY, MO., June 6, 1892.

Dear Sir—I must say that your family and the relatives generally should be proud of you. I am glad to know you have succeeded so well. Will give you what little information I can with pleasure.

Louis Fisher, who come from Germany, married Ann Barbara, daughter of Belshhazzer Blaukenbaker. They had seven children, namely: Nicholas, he died without issue; Stephen, he married Mary Magdelene Gaar; Adam, who married Elizabeth Gaar, he was my great-grandfather, and was born in April, 1740, died July 5, 1812. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. His father, Louis Fisher, died in 1773, in what is now Madison County, Va. The next was Barnet, married Eve Wilhoit; Margaret, married Nicholas Wilhoit. I believe the other two names were Fanny and Nancy. One of them married Ootz (Utz); one of their descendants is or was trustee of the Lutheran Church, near Madison C. H., Va. The other girl married and died without issue. Adam Fisher had seven children. His son Simon died at Red Bank, Island of Cuba, 1801, on his way to Germany for the Fisher estate.

I want one of your books; be glad to have you visit us. May God's blessing rest on you and abide with you.

(Age 56)

Your friend,

EDMOND H. THOMAS [1514—184].

FRESNO, CAL., May 8, 1894.

Dear Relative—It has been forty-four years since I came to California, and have been separated for that length of time from almost all of my relatives. My grandfather (Cornelius, page 74) had five brothers and one sister. He had ten children—five sons and five daughters. He was a stern, positive, determined man, had a fine mind and remarkable memory, a great reader and student, and one of the most scrupulously honest men I ever met. I was living near him when he died. My father's name was Ananias—born 1789, died 1827. Your questions have brought to mind many incidents. When a boy I was at the wedding of John Baptiste Yager (page 186). Uncle Nicholas (377—102) died in the prime of life and left several sons. I lived near them a while, and we played together. I take great interest in your work, and wish it were in my power to give you more information.

Your cousin,

(Rev. Cornelius Yager, age 83.)

C. YAGER [1568—186].

MARYVILLE, MO., June 5, 1894.

Dear Sir—I will take one of your books; would take one for each of my children if I was able. I think every one of this great family should show their sympathy to you for your great love for your family, to take one or more copies. You certainly have had great patience. When I read your dear mother's letter, how my heart's sympathy went out to her; and I think of our own dear boys away. Be sure to visit us.

Truly yours,

NICHOLAS YAGER [4866—363].

SHIPPINGPORT, PA., 1894.

Dear Sir—My grandfather (Michael Crisler, page 67) was a member of the Lutheran Church when he came here; but he connected with the Episcopal Church and was a devout member to his death. My father (John Cristler, page 80) was very proud of the family name. He said the Cristler ancestors came from Saxony. He and his father (Michael Crisler, No. 36, page 67) visited the old Virginia home in Culpeper Co., Va. once when he was a young man. They crossed the mountains on horseback, and spent several weeks with his grandmother, Rosina (Gaar) Crisler. [Rosina (Gaar) Crisler was daughter of Andreas Gar, and came with her father to America in 1732 when she was 19 years old.] She was quite old at that time. He spoke of the joyful meeting between grandfather and his mother. He said they came to the house after dark; his father knocked at the door and his sister came out, and he asked for lodging for the night. The old mother was sitting in the room; she called out, "Come in, Mike, I know you," and there was joy in all hearts. They returned home in October, and there was so much snow in the mountains, they had a hard trip home. He was twenty-one then, but I can't remember the year: it was September they went over (September, 1807). I think he said his grandmother conversed in the German language with her children altogether, and father was only a common German scholar, so he missed a great many things he might have known. I trust that you will be amply repaid for all your trouble; it certainly is a grand work. I am sincerely your friend,

LUCINDA (CRISTLER) SWANEY [690—123].

EDGERTON, MO., December 18, 1893.

Dear Cousin—I am glad to know that the goal of your ambition is almost in reach. I know you have had many difficulties to encounter, and we would be an ungrateful kindred if we did not sympathize with you and help you by buying one of your books at least. I want one as soon as they are published. My mother (d. of Dinah Gaar Yager) is still living, age 79.

Your cousin,

THOMAS J. DOKE [2999—278].

FORT WORTH, TEX., December 10, 1893.

Dear Sir—I hasten to answer and with all my ability assist you in your laudable work. The object you have undertaken is truly grand, and the family pride is very commendable. May God bless your efforts. I must have a copy of that work; but honor to the one that writes up and leaves a true genealogy of a true, great, and good family. You are a young man; you will have time, God giving you life, to accomplish much.

I remain yours to serve,
JOHN RICHARD HARDIN [1858—204].

SALEM, JEWELL CO., KANS., January 1, 1894.

Dear Sir—My brother Dolphus was a Union man, but was taken a conscript and forced to fight in the Confederate Army at Vicksburg. He was captured there by the Federals, taken to Indianapolis, put in prison, and died there before he was able to identify himself. My sister has letters written by him while he was in prison just before he died.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN F. WHITE [4972—188].

CHESTER, ILLS., May 27, 1894.

Respected Sir—Received your well-filled and, to me, very interesting letter, and learned by it that there were many more Crislers than I had ever heard of. If your book doesn't cost over six dollars, I want one. * * * I am left for some purpose alone. You may know I have had grief, yet it has brought spiritual knowledge that could have been learned in no other way. So good-bye for this time. If you ever come by our way, call and see us. I shall be glad to see you if I am just a very poor old widow. My great grandfather (Leonard Crisler) was a son of Rosannah Garr. May God bless your good mother and her children.

Your cousin,
MATILDA (CRISLER) BRADLEY [2383—238].

KISSIMMEE CITY, FLA., June 4, 1894

Dear Sir—Your last letter received this morning. My father was first in a rebellion in Cuba, General Lopez—was captured there by the Spaniards, carried to Spain, and was prisoner there about five months. Second—Mexican War, private, 4th Kentucky Infantry—wounded at the battle of Monterey. My mother was granted a pension by the U. S. as the widow of a Mexican veteran. He then (my father) went out again in the 1st Kentucky Cavalry—Commander, Col. John H. Williams. Was granted medal for the battles of Monterey, Cherubusco, and Resaca. But I am a little ahead. My father went to Nicaragua with Walker; that was in the fifties. He was in the Civil War—first as Recruiting Officer under Governor Harris, of Tenn., then Captain of Artillery; was captured at Fort Donelson, was exchanged. His entire company was killed or captured. He was then First Lieutenant 1st Alabama, served a while (don't know how long), and then was in the Secret Service until the close of the war. Left the United States, and with several others offered their services to Maximilian, and when Maximilian was captured he escaped from Mexico and returned to the United States. I will be glad to answer any and all questions in regard to my people. Let me know when your book is out.

Your cousin,
JAMES W. SOUTHERN [5174—377].

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 4, 1894.

John C. Garr, Esq., Kokomo, Ind.:

My Dear Sir—I have your last circular. It is necessarily a delight to you as you stand on the verge of a completed work, and review the perplexities and the pleasures of so massive an enterprise as you have assumed and well nigh discharged. The consciousness of a thoroughly successful issue is to most of us more comfort and a higher reward than the well-meant and affectionate encomiums of friends who may illy conceive the magnitude of obstacles between the thought and the perfected labor. With thanks for the humble share we enjoy in the fruits of that work, I commend you with sincerity to the enjoyment of your merited rest from a labor of love.

I do not know of any family statistics beyond what I have heretofore given you, and therefore, with kindest wishes and with the wish that we may some day meet "in the flesh," I am very truly yours,
R. J. LA RUE [1847—203].

COLUSA, CAL., May 22, 1894.

Dear Cousin—It will give me so much pleasure—the greatest gladness too—to be permitted to read the Garr history. I will be so grateful to have a copy whenever it is issued. Regards to your dear mother. Very respectfully,

SUE LANDON VAUGHAN [4505—351].

KOKOMO, IND., September 17, 1890.

My Dear Son—I have been thinking about you so much to-day. Oh, how often we have wished you were here. The frost has injured nothing yet. How well I remember what a big frost we had on the 17th of September, fifty years ago. Yes, to-day it is fifty years since your father and I were married. I wish you were here so that I could talk to you. What thoughts crowd into my mind; if I could write them, what a book it would make! Scarcely a year without some notable change in my family in some way or other; some very sad ones, but I have always tried to bear them the best I could, hoping it might be for the best. My greatest desire has always been for the welfare and happiness of my children. Little did I think twenty-five years ago I would live to see my little boy a grown man, and can it be he is thirty years old? I can not realize the fact. Then to think of fifty years ago, all fresh in my memory yet. I was married so young and childlike; knew nothing scarcely of the ways of society. Your father was twenty-three, but one would have taken him to be older; he was of a business turn, had a good education, had traveled considerably, and had a disposition to make himself agreeable wherever he went; always had a cheerful word for every one he met; could enjoy the most learned and best of society. Oh, my dear son, when I think of the past, I can but say in my heart what a noble man he was. No doubt many thought strange of our union; even I have asked him why he chose one so young, who knew so little, when there were so many fine society ladies around. His answer was, he wanted a modest, virtuous, loving wife, and he believed I would make such a one. I know I was often lacking in knowing how or what to do, but always tried to do the best I knew how; while he, seeing my trusting, dependent nature, was not fault-finding, but always ready to praise or encourage whenever he could, which was always a great help, both in the management of my household duties and the care of my children. Twenty-five years ago we celebrated our wedding anniversary with a few of our friends, all of whom are now gone except Uncle Henry and Aunt Susan. Oh, Johnnie, what wisdom in God in not revealing the future to man. Could we have looked only a few months into the future, how different would have been our feelings. Only a short time and we would be separated on earth forever. It is impressed on my mind, as if it were but yesterday, how he took me in his arms and kissed me over and over, and said he hoped we might live together twenty-five years longer, as happy as the past had been. Oh, my dear son, it makes my heart ache and the tears come to my eyes yet as I think of the past, but I know it was the work of God, and I try to be resigned to His will. My thoughts turned more to my little children; what would become of them, I was then such a poor frail creature. I did not expect to be with them long, but I looked to my Heavenly Father and prayed His help that I might live to see them old enough to care for themselves. I have been blessed in my desires, and truly thankful that I am yet spared to be with my children.

(Age 67)

Your affectionate mother,

ANNA Y. GARR.

October 7, 1890.

My Dear Son—Your last letter was a great comfort to me. I love my children dearly. I sincerely thank my God that they have never acted dishonestly. You say you hope in some way to repay me. Oh, my son, God has set the proper time for that. There is no way on earth in which you can repay me better than by living a good life 'yourself, and comforting your old mother by love and care as she travels the declining road of life. I am getting far advanced in life. Ere long I may be quite feeble. Oh then, my son, kind and gentle words are priceless gems to the lonely heart.

MOTHER.

KOKOMO, IND., June 14, 1892.

My Dear Son—It has been a long time since I wrote to you, but 'twas not because mamma did not think of her dear son. I think of you every day, wondering in mind if you are well, hoping you are doing well. Every night when I awake I listen, listen for the well-known step around the house and the gentle knock at mother's door, but it comes not. I had a very pleasant visit to Johnson County; kept so well, and was shown all the kindness and attention in every way. I am so glad I went. Aunt (sister) Sarah is so poorly, very feeble. I stayed with her all the time; she is so patient, seems only waiting the Saviour to call her home above. You say you will work on your book. Oh, my darling boy, I will be so glad if you can complete what you have worked so hard for. Johnnie, I read a short piece yesterday, and it was so much like myself, I send it to you:

"The most-to-be-regretted act of my life," says a lieutenant commander in the navy, "was a letter which I wrote home to my mother when I was about seventeen years of age. She always addressed her letters to me as 'my dear boy.' I felt at that time I was a man, or very near it, and wrote saying that her constant addressing me as a 'boy' made me feel displeased. I received in reply a letter full of reproach and tears. Among other things she said: 'You might grow to be as big as Goliath, as strong as Samson, and as wise as Solomon; you might become ruler of a nation, or emperor of many nations, and the world might revere you and fear you, but to your devoted mother you will always appear, in memory, in your innocent, unpretentious, unself-conceited, unpampered babyhood. In those days when I washed and dressed and kissed and worshiped you, you were my idol. Nowadays you are becoming part of a gross world by contact with it, and I can not bow down to you and worship you. But if there is manhood and natural love transmitted to you, you will understand that the highest compliment that mother-love can pay you is to call you 'my dear boy.'"

As grandma Garfield said, "Why did they kill my baby boy?" Mother's heart ever clings to her dear children. God bless my darling boy.

MOTHER.

(Age 69)

KOKOMO, IND., February 12, 1894.

My Dear Son—You don't know what a relief your letter was to my anxious heart. I am so afraid your constant hard work, with so little exercise, will bring on sickness. My son could not think I had forgotten him and his hard struggle to finish his work. Did I not know that you have such patience and perseverance I would feel more anxious about you. I can sacrifice my own pleasure any time for the benefit of my children. My life is almost past, theirs is yet before them. It does me good to know you have the sympathy of such good people. May they soon realize pleasure in reading your book. But oh, the time seems so long the nearer its close, till you can finish your work. 'Twill be the happiest news, the most soothing tonic to my anxious heart and make my feeble limbs feel stronger.

(Age 71)

MOTHER.

KOKOMO, IND., November 6, 1892.

Dear Brother—I am truly glad that after so much labor, expense, and vexatious delay, your book is nearing completion. I should never have accredited to you so much persistence as you have shown in its preparation.

The history of the book itself will always be a source of interest and pleasure to you, let alone the fact of having done a great favor to the Garr family. When our dear father commenced this work, fifty years ago, he had no idea of carrying it to such proportions as you have. He had an intense interest in all that pertained to his family, and the traditions of his ancestry stimulated him to collect the records and data which have formed the nucleus of your present work. He had a genial and social disposition, but he was as clannish as a Scot. The Gaar of Virginia, of the fourth remove, was as near to him as the first cousin in Kentucky. The Hendersons of Iowa, the Smiths of Missouri, the Yagers of Kentucky, and the Clores of Virginia, all welcomed him as a kinsman indeed. I have often wondered that he kept up such an extensive correspondence as long as he did. The cruel war broke up all such pleasant relations, as it did in so many other families, and so the work stopped; but the little memorandum books and the old letters were kept, and now, after so many years, sweet peace reigns, and we are hunting one another up again. Our dear old mother still lives, and hopes to see the work begun by her young husband finished, after so many years, by her youngest boy.

I want to give a copy to each one of my children. We have reason to be proud of our history as a family. It is the history of a God-fearing, home-loving, honest, and thrifty race. It is rich in victories of peace and religion, and while not wanting in deeds of valor achieved by its brave and true men and women, yet I think the Bible and weaver's shuttle of Andreas Gaar more indicative of our true character than the crest of eagles and lilies won under Charles V.

The book, it seems to me, will be of exceeding personal interest to so many of us. It will recall many pleasant recollections, and awaken many tender memories of the past. It will preserve to us in an available form so much that would otherwise disappear or be obscured by the doubt that always hovers over tradition.

I hope that you will receive in some small measure the just appreciation which your great interest in this work deserves.

Your brother,

JAMES O. GARR, M. D. [3094--284].

KOKOMO, IND., November 7, 1892.

Dear Cousin—Your letter of the 2d inst. at hand. Of course I am in sympathy with your undertaking in the compilation of a "Gaar Genealogy," and I appreciate the efforts you have made in clearing up a great deal of information concerning our common ancestry which was before unknown to us all. There are a few links in the chain that are yet a little obscure; but we have sufficient evidence in an historical way to show our connection to the "Andreas Gaar," of Illenschwang, who in 1732 emigrated to Pennsylvania. I have always known, in a general way, that he was our reputed ancestor, that he emigrated to America long ago, and that his descendants (his children and grandchildren) lived in Virginia; but I could never understand how, in his pastoral letter and in his letter from the Burgomaster of Dinkhofhuhl, Bavaria, he was intending to emigrate to Pennsylvania. Your trip in 1888 to the place of his nativity, and securing the letters from himself and son, John Adam, to their old pastor and friend, showing that they had landed in Philadelphia, Pa., on September 25, 1732, and the book you recently sent me, published by "I. Rupp," of Philadelphia, 1880, showing that Andreas Gaar and John Adam Gaar landed at Philadelphia on September 25, 1732, are to me wonderful revelations. It seems like romance. It seems like unearthing the impossible. As I said before, there is a link out—that is, we have not yet been able to discover when it was he left Pennsylvania. What were his motives for doing so? And when did he remove thither? We are left to the general history of the time for the solution. John Eston Cook, in his admirable history of Virginia, speaks of the Scotch, Irish, and Germans, as being the first immigrants to push over the border lauds of Pennsylvania and settle the fertile valleys of the Opequon and Shenandoah. This was in 1732. No doubt Andreas Gaar with his family followed in the wake of this tide. In the will of Lorentz Gaar (son of Andreas), he speaks of his land on the Shenandoah River. He and his family evidently came from there to the east side of the Blue Ridge Mountains, where the will was evidently written, and where he also owned land.

The publication of the church letter and the certificate of good citizenship brought from Germany in 1732, now in the possession of Dr. J. O. Garr, and the letters written back to their old pastor after their arrival in Pennsylvania, and the will of Lorentz Gaar (1753), as well as other records to be found in the old Lutheran Church in Madison County, Va., and at the county seats of Culpeper, Madison, and Orange Counties, Va.—all of these published in neat book form, supplemented by explanatory notes, would no doubt make very interesting reading; and I am sure that no "Gaar," or any one related to the family by blood or otherwise who had a particle of family pride, would fail to secure one. The old Germanic families, while not as aggressive and perhaps not as intellectual as the Scotch-Irish, were nevertheless industrious, honest, frugal, and religious, and many of their number stood high as ministers and religious teachers. What can be said of the "Gaar" family can be said of thousands of other heads of families who emigrated from Germany to Pennsylvania during the last century. Take them and their descendants as a whole, and they form a safe and conservative element in our population.

A "Gaar" or "Garr" genealogy, such as you contemplate publishing, would be of great advantage from another standpoint, viz., that of forming the basis from which to trace heirship. Many fortunes in the old countries and many in this country go to the State, owing to the lack of heirs to claim them. Too many of our people do not seem to care who their ancestors were; they grown negligent in this regard. In this they are mistaken. It is just as necessary to keep up family genealogies as it is to take the census, or for Government to secure any kind of statistics. It has a tendency to foster the social element in our natures—to create a kindlier feeling toward each other. It has a tendency to bind individuals from every section of our country together, thus forming an element of strength in our Government. Family pride is a good thing, when not carried to the extreme. That element in our character should be cultivated. We should strive to be better and worthier than our ancestors, if we can. Your undertaking deserves great success.

Your cousin,

NEWTON B. SMITH, Atty. [3102--285].

CINCINNATI, O., August 11, 1894.

Cousin John—Having examined with care the first pages of your book as they came from the printer, and having familiarized myself thoroughly with the entire work in manuscript, and knowing, as I do, the honest, conscientious efforts and patient toil and perseverance that have characterized the preparation of this genealogy, I feel constrained to add a few last words of encouragement and congratulation as you approach the consummation of your stupendous undertaking. The zeal and enthusiasm you have manifested throughout, show you to possess those same commendable traits of character so prominently exhibited in our early ancestors.

Your work not only presents to the mind of the student and searcher after knowledge a fund of information gathered from musty and almost forgotten records, from moss-covered and neglected tomb-stones, scattered from the classic recesses of the old church and churchyard in the quaint, antique German village of Illenschwang, even to the remotest corners of our own beloved country; but it also tells the story of a noble, heroic, courageous, and Christian ancestry, of which we may be justly proud.

From the earliest period of recorded time, both sacred and profane historians have considered the genealogy of the people about whom they wrote of paramount importance. The sacred historians have, with much care and precision, traced the genealogy of the patriarchs, saints, and apostles in unbroken lines back through almost numberless generations, and have handed down to posterity the holy record portraying these facts, and standing as a sacred monument inscribed in letters of divine inspiration which shall endure through all time, and even to the last day when the recording angel shall transcribe them in the great book of records beyond the ken of man.

It has been the province of the writers of profane history to trace the genealogy and origin of tribes, races, and nations of people whose doings they chronicled, rather than to unravel the mysterious and complicated woof of individual genealogies.

While your book does not undertake to record events of interest to the world at large, yet the fact that those of us whose names are honored with places on its pages are bound together by ties of love and consanguinity in one great family, renders the work invaluable to each one of us, and entitles it to a place of honor and respect in the household of every one whose family record it contains.

We can all remember how eagerly and with how much love and deep veneration we have listened to our dear old grandparents relate incidents of their early lives and regale their anxious listeners with many interesting happenings of by-gone days. But those old souls have long since gone to their final rest. The ruthless hand of Time has wrought wondrous changes even in the heritage they left to us.

The old family Bible in which we sorrowfully recorded the dates when they departed this life has probably been lost or destroyed by fire; perhaps the old farm, where we spent so many happy days in innocent childhood, has passed into the hands of strangers, who, with rude and irreverent hands, have demolished even the humble tombstones that marked the sacred spot where we tenderly and piously laid our loved ones away in everlasting sleep. A few years more, and naught but a treacherous memory, aided by tradition, will furnish us information concerning our ancestors. The records, if any be extant, of their births, marriages, and deaths will be scattered far and wide, rendering it wholly impracticable if not impossible, for us to learn, even after years of unceasing toil, the valuable and accurate knowledge of our ancestors that is contained in the golden pages of this great book. It has been well and truly said that "Man that is born of woman is of few days, and full of trouble; he cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not."

There are few things in this world that are enduring. Man and his material works are alike transient and ephemeral. They perish and are forgotten.

Who and what we are, whether we sprung from a noble or ignoble ancestry, and what deeds we performed worthy of preservation and imitation, can only be known and perpetuated by such self-sacrificing interest as you have manifested in compiling this wonderful genealogy of our family, covering a period of two hundred and thirty-seven years in the world's history, and comprising over sixteen thousand names. This work will become more valuable as time passes. Generations yet unborn will cherish it as the richest legacy that can be bequeathed by their ancestors.

When the light of earth has vanished from all whose names are written on this roll of honor, when the monuments placed to our memories shall have long since mouldered to dust, your book will still be preserved and treasured up by our posterity as the only record in existence of their ancestors.

I trust this great achievement, this enduring monument of your energy, perseverance, and courage, may meet with the praise and commendation of all who may be fortunate enough to carefully study and thoroughly understand its contents. May success, long life, health, and prosperity attend you.

Your cousin,

JOEL C. CLORE [7348—251].

[Kokomo Dispatch, March 29, 1888.]

LONDON, March 17.—It was the good steamship Ohio, of the Inman Line, that landed me at Liverpool in the mists of a January morning. Of the ocean trip there is little need to write. It has been described time out of mind, and nothing I might say will add to the general appreciation of its beauties or detract from its undeniable discomforts. A five hours' trip over the Midland Railway, covering a distance of 220 miles, landed me in the great English metropolis, London. This wonderful city, covering an area of 122 square miles and containing four and a half millions of people, has furnished the theme of thousands of volumes, and yet its wonders are told of not the half. It shelters over a million foreigners. It numbers more Roman Catholics than Rome, more Jews than Palestine, more Scotch than Edinburgh, and more Irish than Cork and Belfast combined. The police force is nearly half as large as the United States army, numbering 10,700 men. In various directions there are more than ten continuous miles of street. The water supply averages 50,000,000 gallons daily, and 400,000 gas lamps, consuming 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas, light the wondrous city by night. An average of 28 miles of streets and 9,000 houses are builded yearly. London is the home of royalty, though fortunately it is at present neither despotic nor autocratic. Its palaces, with well-kept grounds surrounding, are magnificent structures. The streets and pavements of the city are the best I have ever seen, the street-cars being banished from the business sections and principal thoroughfares. One thing—all Americans, on arriving in London, should register at the American Exchange, 449 Strand, where one finds the principal American papers on file and for sale, and gets money changed, drafts cashed, or purchases railway or steamship tickets. The management is most courteous, and does not expect to be "tipped" for favors—the curse of existence in London. Although a foreigner is legal prey in any country, I find the English ever ready to confer a favor or answer a question.

I was highly interested by a visit to Madame Tussaud's wax-works and museum. The figures are most life-like, all being attired according to their station and the time in which they lived. In the Napoleon rooms one sees the bed the great soldier used at St. Helena for six years, with the mattress and pillow upon which he died, and upon which he is represented as lying in state in his Chasseur uniform, covered with the cloak he wore at the famous battle of Marengo in 1800. Here, too, is the crown of Charlemagne, the coronation robe of Napoleon, the robe of Josephine, the cradle of Napoleon's brother Joseph—who occupied the throne of Naples—valued at $25,000, and the celebrated flag of Elba, captured by the Prussians at Waterloo. But the most interesting object is the highly curious military carriage of the bloody Corsican, in which he made his famous Russian campaign, and surrendered, with all his blood-earned greatness, to Wellington and Blucher at Waterloo. It weighs nearly two tons, and was drawn by six horses, being a combination of carriage, bed, secretary, toilet-room, jewel-case, armor-case, etc. Here is the world-famed Chamber of Horrors. On every hand is seen guillotines, scaffolds, executioners' swords, hangman's halters, instruments of torture, likenesses of murderers, thieves, robbers, felons, decapitated victims, suicides, etc. There are some particularly startling groups—the gray head of the beautiful Mary of Scots held aloft after the brutal execution at Fotheringay; a young girl on the rack of torture; a strong man under the torture of the thumb-screws; an aged prisoner in his cell; and reflections of all the brutalities of the Middle Ages. And here is "the most interesting relic in human history," the celebrated French guillotine that abbreviated 22,000 bodies by a head, wet by the blood of Marie Antoinette, the Duke of Orleans, and Robespierre. It is a cavern, a dungeon, a grave. Nowhere as here is one so impressed with the cruelty, the brutality, and the crime of mankind; and nowhere is one compelled to a keener appreciation of the blessings of this civilized, Christianized, and enlightened age.

A point of inestimable historic interest is the Tower of London. The massive pile, the superstructure of which was begun in 1078, stands partly on the old wall built by the Romans in 360 and rebuilt by Alfred the Great in 886. It has served as a castle, a fortress, and a prison. It has echoed the laughter of royal mirth and the shouts of royal valor, and it has stifled the sobs of royal misery bewailing the briefness of power, and pleading for an hour of heaven's sunshine in which the peasant basked. It has witnessed the kiss of chaste and loyal love and the liping of Judas. It has held the nuptial couch of kings, while lurking behind were the assassin's dagger and the garroting rope of the infanticide. It has described the brief and bloody path 'twixt the crown and the axe, and the dedication to its present use—that of a sort of national museum of antiquity—was eminently befitting. On Tower Hill was erected the first permanent gibbet, and here executions were carried out for four hundred years. Here is the Bell Tower, in which Elizabeth was confined pending her removal to Woodstock and her subsequent ascension to the throne by the death of her murderously cruel half sister, Bloody Mary. Here, through Traitors' Gate, leading up from the Thames, have passed kings, queens, princes, soldiers, and statesmen on their way to the block. Here is the Bloody Tower, where, in the presence of Edward IV., the son of Margaret of Anjou, the ambitious and indomitable wife of Henry VI., was murdered, marking the tragic end of the War of the Roses. Here is the White Tower, which centuries ago was described as "a fortress both large and strong,

The walls and crest rising upon deepest foundations,
Built with mortar and tempered with the blood of beasts."

Passing the banqueting chamber, the state floor, the council chamber, where William, Lord Hastings, was condemned by Glouster, the armory is reached. This contains the arms and armors of all ages—lances, crossbows, halberds, battle-axes, swords, pistols, guns, bayonets, etc.; Greek, Roman, and Norman armor; the heavy mail of the early Crusaders, etc. The two most notable are the suits worn by Henry VII. and his brother-in-law, Dudley, Duke of Leicester. A bit of master workmanship is a figure of Elizabeth on her way to divine worship after the defeat of the Spanish Armada, and hundreds of objects of historical and artistic interest, which must wait for mention at another time.

In my next we will continue an inspection of the Tower and pay a flying visit to Bavaria.

JOHN C. GARR.

[Kokomo Dispatch, April 5, 1888.]

LONDON, March 22.—We paused in the ancient chamber of state, now the armory, of London Tower. Among the arms and armaments of every age were stone shot taken from the moat of the Tower, one of which is a foot in diameter. Here is the block on which were executed the Scottish lords of the rebellion of 1745, the cloak worn by General Wolfe when he fell on the Heights of Abraham, at the storming of Quebec, and numberless objects of historical interest. Passing through the parade grounds, studded with great cannon, trophies of English victories, one reaches a small square, in the center of which stood the scaffold on which Anne Boleyn, who supplanted Catherine in the affections of Henry VIII., was put to death by that same capricious monarch, and where Lady Jane Grey and the Earl of Essex were beheaded. Looking to the right, one sees the Chapel of St. Peter's, where souls were shrived while heads were prepared for the axe. The historian Severn wrote, two and a half centuries ago: "Here lieth before the high altar of St. Peter's two Dukes between two Queens." Macaulay wrote: "Thither have been carried, through successive ages, by the rude hand of jailers, without one mourner following, the bleeding relics of men who have been captains of armies, leaders of parties, oracles of senates, and ornaments of courts. Truly there is no sadder spot on earth than this little cemetery." But greatness towering to heaven and talents envied of the gods bought no ransom. The hand that strangled thieves at Tyburn reddened in royal blood at the Tower.

A glance at the Beauchamp Tower and we turn from London. This was the principal political prison, and here were detained the illustrious state prisoners awaiting their release—by parole, by pardon; by assassination, or by legal and regal butchery. Not that all executions were by royal command, for we see Cromwell's parliament taking the life of the Stuart—a king bought from his Scottish kinsmen by the Puritans as Christ was bought from Judas by the Jews—in defiance of the constitution they pretended to defend. But the great burden of blood rests on royalty, shed in contention with its class. On the walls are many inscriptions—affecting memorials of the unfortunates who have suffered for their politics, their religion, or the accident of their birth. Here they found the hard gray walls more sympathetic than the armed automatons who guarded them, and to these and heaven they confided in their loneliness, as the darkness of death settled about them. As one turns from this grim old pile, where heraldic coats-of-arms have been washed from earth by the blood of them they honored, where the poinard of murder has defeated royal decrees so many times, and royal commands have outraged justice, mercy, and humanity, the dogma of the divine right of kings becomes a thing grotesque and terrible—fit only to live in the ages of darkness, when the intellect slept and before liberty had lighted the conscience and lightened the heart.

I have just returned from a ten days' excursion through Holland, Germany, and Bavaria to Dinkelsbuehl, from whence my forefathers immigrated 156 years ago. Dinkelsbuehl was formerly a free city, but is now a Bavarian dependency. It is situated on the right bank of the Woernitz, and was built about 600 years ago. It is a most picturesque place, surrounded by a strong wall and a deep moat, which, however, did not prevent the city from suffering severely in that bloody religious wrangle known as the Thirty Years' War. It is entered by four great gates, over each of which rises a tower to the height of 150 feet, where are stationed two men to ring bells and keep watch for fire. The cathedral, built 500 years ago, though an imperially grand structure without, is but plainly appointed within. The city boasts besides several churches. I had the pleasure of meeting here Mr. Emanuel Cook, formerly of Madison, Wisconsin, and Prof. Otto Fisher, they being the only English-speaking people in the city. Mr. Cook lives in a house dating back to the time of the reign of the Spaniard, Charles V., and it is a magnificent relic of the fourteenth century architecture. Dinkelsbuehl does not boast of sidewalks, and the denizens, mostly in blouses and sabots, walk in the middle of the street. All vehicles, whether for one or two beasts, are provided with a tongue, shafts being unknown. Oxen are harnessed with a short yoke, fitted against the forehead just below the horns, from the ends of which traces lead to the single-tree. And—ye gods!—such beer! Genuine Culmbacher—everybody drinks it. Glasses holding nearly a quart, provided with a metallic lid to keep the beverage fresh, are furnished. The Germans, as in every other affair of life, drink beer slowly. There is no "treating," each man paying for his own drinks, and I saw not one drunken man during my stay here. When services at church are over Sunday, everybody flocks to the taprooms to smoke and drink beer. And the barmaids are beauties—some of them. I noticed a remarkably pretty girl that waited upon us one evening. She was probably of Bohemian extraction—without the width of girth and ponderous hips of the Nuremberg article, and combining that rare natural contrast, dark, finely arched eyebrows, hazel eyes, and a wealth of golden hair. Of course I wanted to converse with her, but my knowledge of German being limited to the simple interrogation "Wie viel?"—the answer always coming in a mild tone and meek terms—I was not able to do so. True, I might have made the effort through the medium of Mynheer Cook, but, knowing that gentleman, I wisely refrained, preferring the business-like stare of the transplanted Romany to her mirth at my expense. Over the doorway of the room in which we sat was hung this unique legend:

"God bless thy coming in if thou be thirsty,
And thy going away if thou hast paid."

Every Monday morning the Protestant ministers—Carlos failed to extinguish the breed, even in Dinkelsbuehl—meet at one of the taverns to drink, smoke, and discuss the affairs of their respective parishes. The people are intelligent, happy, and moderately prosperous. As I shook the dust of the old, quaint city from my feet, I reflected that the chastisements which as a youth I suffered for preferring a sleep in the shade of a tree to the monotonous tramp behind the plow were unmerited. It was a fault I came by honestly, for sleep is the normal condition of Dinkelsbuehl.

Returning, I spent a day at Cologne, visiting the famous art galleries and the grand cathedral, completed within the present decade, which cost over six centuries of labor. Never, perhaps, has the majesty of God been more grandly reflected in a thing inanimate—always excepting St. Peter's at Rome—than in this imperishable monument to his glory. Cologne and its many attractions have been extolled by pens whose genius would abash my poor efforts; and with this mere mention I continue my journey towards "the lights o' London town."

JOHN C. GARR.

THE END.
